FIRST MEETING JUNE 22

Gluckstadt is now a city, officially

By SCOTT HAWKINS scott@onlinemadison.com

The city of Gluckstadt is official! The City Charter was received last month from the Secretary of State after a hard-fought state Supreme Court battle and became effective on Sunday. Before rolling up their sleeves and getting down to the hard work of running a city, the new mayor and board must be sworn in and that is scheduled to take place in two weeks. One big issue the new city must consider is revenue. "It is always overwhelming when you start from scratch," said attorney Jerry Mills of the firm Pyle, Mills, Dye & Pittman, who has worked on the case for 20 years. "You've got a city created that for the first three or four or five months won't have a nickel in the bank." Aldermen will need to establish a millage rate early on, Mills said, adding that preliminary research in 2016 with a projected budget showed the city would need to levy an ad valorem millage rate of 12 mills to fund the projected $2 million budget. One mill is equal to $1 per $1,000 of a property's assessed value.

John Scanlon, also with Pyle, Mills, Dye & Pittman, said no one can be sure what the city's millage rate is until it is set in a public meeting. "We believe based on the hypothetical budget and the plans they presented to the chancellor at trial that they will seek to have a 12 mill rate in place for two years at which point they may go up to 14 mills," Scanlon said. Also the city will begin receiving a portion of sales tax collected by the state in the city limits. The state Department of Revenue collects the sales tax and diverts 18.5% back to incorporated cities. The first official meeting is scheduled for 6 p.m. Tuesday, June 22 at St. Joseph Catholic Church, 127 Church Road, Gluckstadt. "It is a very exciting time for everybody," said Mayor

Walter Morrison, who was appointed to the position by a citizen's committee along with five aldermen. "I know the people who have worked very hard are excited." Gluckstadt's appointed aldermen are: Miya Warfield-Bates, John Taylor, Jayce Powell, Wesley Slay and Lisa Williams, all of whom will initially serve in at-large capacities. See CITY, page A10

FINAL BLOW Landfill killed at MDEQ hearing

By DUNCAN DENT duncan@onlinemadison.com

A new law giving voters the say in new landfill construction was a deciding factor in the the Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality denying five outstanding permits for a proposed site west of Ridgeland, officials said. MDEQ's denial was the "final nail in the coffin," said Ridgeland Alderman-at-Large D.I. Smith, one of the leaders of the landfill opposition who was present for the decision before the MDEQ Permit Board on Tuesday. Smith said that the governor's signature on House Bill 949 in March virtually ensured that the issue was dead as it required a referendum vote to build the landfill. Tuesday's decision put the issue to rest for good, he said. "This was the coup de grâce," Smith said. "After HB 949 you could have said the project was dead but now it is dead, dead, dead with a dagger in its heart." Smith said the board "did what was right" and unanimously denied five permit requests from NCL Waste LLC for the proposed North County Line landfill. Smith said the board heard reasoning from MDEQ staff to deny public comment from one resident opposing the landfill and a lawyer for the city of Ridgeland. Smith said that no one from NCL spoke at the meeting though they did submit a letter asking the board to table See LANDFILL, page A2

RIDGELAND HIGH SCHOOL

Robotics wins at world competition

By DUNCAN DENT duncan@onlinemadison.com

Ridgeland High School's robotics program once again finished the season with hardware from both state and world competitions. The teams capped off a week of remote competition at the virtual 2021 VEX World Championship with two top prizes. The world competition was held by live remote starting on May 17 through May 29. Coach Bill Richardson said this had been a difficult year for his team. Last year the COVID-19 pandemic cut the season short right after a big win at the state competition. In the meantime, he lost some key student leaders to graduation and he said that remote competitions meant some things got "put off." In the end, they were able to finish as the top team in the state and made their sixth straight world competition appearance where they earned the program's fourth and fifth world level awards. "Last year was not a good year and this year was trying as well," Richardson said. "When we found out we won those awards our kids were hooping and hollering and I had to stop them from rushing in to take the robots apart and get started on next year." He said that he has had students in the lab every day since school let out working on next year's robot. "It really put a fire under both our students and myself," Richardson said. The high school World Championship included 190 teams from 55 different nations. Members of Ridgeland High School robotics team 7536R, including 10th graders Stephen Weathersby, Mirage Giri, TJ Idris, Ethan Young, Gabe Bordelon, Shau Saini, and Zakarie McDonald, won the World Championship Build Award, Madison County Schools spokesperson Gene Wright said. City approves Southern Beverage design plans

By DUNCAN DENT
duncan@onlinemadison.com

RIDGELAND — A beverage distribution facility expected to bring 200 jobs received unanimous approval from city officials last week moving one step closer to the facility's November 2022 target opening window.

"We are really excited," Community Development Director Alan Hart said about the Southern Beverage facility coming to the Highland Colony 220 Business Park at the intersection of South Maple and Hamilton Streets.

The city board unanimously approved a site plan and architectural review for the building, 7-0 on the consent agenda, at last Tuesday's regular board meeting.

Officials have said the 184,000 square foot modern distribution facility will be located at Highland Colony Parkway and will bring 200 jobs with an average annual wage of $48,000 to Madison County.

The above rendering shows what the new Southern Beverage facility in Ridgeland will look like once built by Nov. 2022.

The item received little discussion, though Ridgeland Mayor Gene F. McGee has said he is thankful for the growth this facility will represent for the city.

"We are delighted that Southern Beverage Company chose Ridgeland as their newest Mississippi location," McGee said. "We welcome them to our city and would like to express our gratitude for their investment in our community. The Highland Colony 220 Business Park is a prime location for businesses."

Construction on the Ridgeland facility is anticipated to begin this summer with completion by November 2022.

Hart also noted that the new facility received unanimous approval from the Architectural Review Board at their Tuesday,

May 25, meeting, the same day Southern Beverage and local officials announced the facility to the public.

Theo Costas Jr., owner and president of Southern Beverage Company, made the May 25 announcement in conjunction with the city and Madison County Economic Development Authority.

"This project helps us to better serve our customer demand," Costas Jr. said at the time. "Through the years, Southern Beverage has strategically grown throughout Mississippi and this new facility helps position us for the future."

According to a fact sheet supplied by Southern Beverage Company, the company began in 1939 with a warehouse in Jackson to become a distributor of Anheuser-Busch products. After opening their first warehouse in the capital city, Southern Beverage Company expanded to Laurel, Hattiesburg and Batesville with additional distribution centers. Today, the company employs 333 people in Mississippi, representing 47 suppliers and distributing 690 different beverage brands in 32 counties within the state.

Madison currently enrolling for summer arts program

By JOHN LEE
john@onlinemadison.com

Students from fourth through 11th grades can find their creative spirits through the visual and performing arts by participating in the upcoming 2021 Summer Arts Camp at the Madison Square Center for the Arts.

The 5 p.m. June 15 deadline to register for the camp is fast approaching for the session that will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, July 5, through Friday, July 16, in the Madison Square Center for the Arts building.

The camp offers classes in dance, drama and set design and culminates with a final production in front of friends and parents.

Brittany Mayfield, general manager of events for the Madison Square Center for the Arts, said several participants have already registered.

"Everyone registered is really looking forward to this and feeling a sense of normalcy," Mayfield said.

Mayfield said all the registered campers are excited about the camp's grand finale, which is a musical production of Disney's "Descendants, The Musical" scheduled for July 17.

"We're incredibly excited to be able to put on this camp, and everyone is looking forward to it," Mayfield said.

During the camp, campers in small groups move from class to class throughout each day with breaks for lunch and snacks. Class sessions include lessons in music, dance, set design, art, drama, theatre education and audition preparation. Each day concludes with musical rehearsals.

Camp participants are encouraged to bring a water bottle each day and wear clothes they can properly dance in, along with a packed lunch. Every camper will receive a T-shirt included in their registration. Tuition cost is $425, with a $25 family discount for each additional child.

"We are very excited to have the Summer Arts Camp coming up in July," said Nathan Hanson, parks and recreation director for the City of Madison. "They'll especially enjoy getting to put on performances for their family and friends. We're all very excited and looking forward to July 5."

Visit the City of Madison website at <http://www.madisonthecity.com/news/2021-summer-arts-camp-madison-square-center-arts-july-5-16> for the registration form, and email madisonsummerartscamp@gmail.com for more information, or visit the Madison Square Center for the Arts Facebook page at facebook.com/MadisonSquareCenterForTheArts.

Police shoot teen accused of shooting uncle

By DUNCAN DENT
duncan@onlinemadison.com

RIDGELAND — A juvenile who allegedly shot his uncle in a hotel parking here last week and was shot by police as he fled remains hospitalized.

Ridgeland Police Chief John Neal said they are waiting to see if any charges will be brought against the 16-year-old suspect in an investigation being led by the Mississippi Bureau of Investigation.

An argument police heard break out in the hotel parking lot while they were on another call escalated into an officer shooting the teenager who fled after allegedly shooting his uncle.

As police were finishing up a drug arrest at the Drury Inn, 610 E. County Line, last Wednesday night after 9 p.m., a disturbance broke out in the southwest corner of the parking lot.

As officers approached the argument, a gun was fired, Neal said.

The 16-year-old juvenile who allegedly fired the gun fled, an officer gave a command to stop and when the teen did not the officer discharged his firearm, Neal said.

"Both victims were transported to a local hospital and remain there in stable condition with non-life-threatening injuries," Neal said.

Neal said available information was limited so the Mississippi Bureau of Investigation could conduct its investigation.

Police initially responded to the hotel at about 9:15 p.m. in relation to a man with a weapon walking through the parking lot looking into vehicles.

The man, Raheem D. Harris, 25, of Jackson was found to be in possession of a controlled substance and a firearm.

"No firearms were discharged on this initial call for service," Neal said.

Neal said that no other arrests had been made as of Thursday afternoon.

The results of the shooting investigation will be reported to the Madison County District Attorney.

"Don't bring crime to our city and think you can get away with it," Neal told WLBT last week.

"My number one goal as Chief of Police here is I've got to protect our residents, our businesses from crime from anywhere. Just so happens on this particular night the violators that were involved in this incident down at the Drury Inn they were from Jackson."

Landfill

to the discussion.

"It was fairly straightforward," Smith said.

The board denied requests for a solid waste management permit, air permit to construct, an NPDES stormwater permit, waster water pretreatment permit and a 401 Water Quality Certification.

MDEQ spokesman Robbie Wilbur said that HB 949 was a deciding factor in the board's decision to deny the outstanding permits.

"As a result of the adoption of House Bill 949 during the Mississippi Legislature's 2021 Regular Session, and at the recommendation of MDEQ staff, the Mississippi Environmental Quality Permit Board voted to deny the existing environmental permit applications previously submitted by NCL Waste, LLC for a proposed municipal landfill," Wilbur said.

Smith said that squashing this proposed landfill was the result of the efforts of many people.

"This was a huge community effort," Smith said. "This is the result of thousands of people making calls and sending emails and text messages to their friends and our state governing officials to show that we are not going to take this anymore. I was honored to be a small part of this effort."

The Mississippi House of Representatives took the final legislative step approving a measure 107-3 to concur with the State Senate on House Bill 949 giving voters the say.

Gov. Tate Reeves signed the bill into law at the new Ridgeland City Hall on Wednesday, March 10.

Aside from opposing the landfill for aesthetic reasons, Ridgeland officials see the landfill as an impediment to the future growth of the city, particularly, the city's West County Line Road annexation which was final and effective on Thursday, March 4.

The fight goes back to 1998 when the Madison County Board of Supervisors, under David Richardson's leadership, rezoned the site to allow for another dump.

the most durable robot.

"The win is based on the robot exhibiting durability and robust construction as well as reliability on the field and holding up under competition conditions," Wright said. "Criteria for the winning robot also includes attention to safety and detail in the students' design, as well as excellent understanding and explanation by the team of how they worked together to develop their robot."

Weathersby, a rising junior at RHS, has been a part of the team for three years. He said he is happy with the way his team finished in his first year of high school competition.

"I think we had a really good robot and a good notebook," Weathersby said. "I am proud of how we came out of this year."

Members of Ridgeland High School robotics team 7536C, including seniors Sneha Patel and juniors Jacob Burt and Arturo Guerrero, won the World Championship Innovate Award.

That honor is presented to a team exhibiting the most effective and efficient robot design process.

"Key criteria for winning included an exemplary engineering notebook, including clear, complete and organized documentation of the design process," Wright said.

The winning team for both awards was also judged on their effective explanation and understanding of how they worked together to develop their robot.

Richardson said that interviewing skills were a regular focus of practices throughout the season.

Burger chain coming to G'stadt

By DUNCAN DENT
duncan@onlinemadison.com

GLUCKSTADT — A national burger chain is working to bring a new location to Gluckstadt Road with an anticipated opening date by the end of the summer.

Wayback Burger has a proposed Gluckstadt location at 1091 Gluckstadt Road Suite E. This will be the national chain's second location in the state. They currently have 135 locations in 31 states including an Olive Branch restaurant.

Wayback spokesman Nicolette Giordano said that the Madison County location is slated to open sometime in August.

"I don't believe we have an exact date yet," Giordano said.

Founded in 1991 in Newark, Delaware, Wayback

Burgers is a Connecticut-based fast-casual franchise that serves cooked-to-order burgers and hand-dipped milkshakes, said Patrick Conlin, president of Wayback Burgers.

Wayback Burgers currently operates over 166 locations nationally and internationally in Brunei, Morocco, Saudi Arabia, Malaysia, Pakistan, The Netherlands and Manitoba, Canada and Ireland.

Strain cruises to victory in general election

By JOHN LEE
john@onlinemadison.com

MADISON — Alderman-at-Large Sandra Strain was re-elected with almost 90% of the vote in the city's only contested race Tuesday night.

Republican Strain had 1,283 votes, or 87%, to Democrat Janice Jackson's 197 votes, or 13%, in the general election.

All other incumbent Republican aldermen and Mayor Mary Hawkins-Butler ran unopposed.

"Winning re-election was so exciting, and I'm so happy and honored that the citizens of Madison re-elected me," said Strain, who was first elected in December 2020 to fill her late husband's unexpired term after he died that October following complications from a stroke.

"I'm looking forward to serving the community for my own four-year term," said Strain.

"I want to thank my peers, voters, and guardian angel Warren in Heaven for giving me this opportunity. I am ready to serve and feel I was born to serve," she said.

"I absolutely live for others. My family and service are truly the most important things in the world to me. Being Alderman-at-Large has given me so much purpose, especially at a time where I needed it most. Watching God's plan unfold has led me to be here today and it means more to me than I can even put into words."

Smith, Gautier easily win re-election bids

By DUNCAN DENT
duncan@onlinemadison.com

RIDGELAND — Two incumbent Ridgeland aldermen will keep their seats, according to unofficial returns from the June 8 municipal election in Ridgeland.

Republican Incumbent Alderman-at-large D.I. Smith took the race with 1,681 votes to Democratic Challenger Poteat Medley's 808 total votes. All totals are unofficial results reported Wednesday morning by City Clerk Paula Tierce.

"I am very pleased and excited for the turnout today, particularly in Wards one and two," Smith said Tuesday night after initial votes were counted.

In Ward 2, the only other challenged race in Ridgeland, Republican Incumbent Alderman Chuck Gautier beat Democratic Challenger Walter Young Jr. Gautier received 506 votes and Young came away with 236 votes in the race.

Republican Ridgeland Mayor Gene F. McGee had no opponent and will serve his ninth term as mayor.

All other incumbent aldermen in Ridgeland ran unopposed as Republicans.

This will be Smith's third full term as Alderman-at-large for the city of Ridgeland. In 2012, he won the seat in a special election with a year and a half left in the term to serve.

Voters in each of the city's wards vote for the alderman at large position.

The largest margin was in Ward 1, where Smith lives. Smith took 707 votes to Medley's 236. Turnout was also strong in Ward 2 where Smith took 502 votes with Medley receiving 234 votes.

A total of 175 absentee ballots and seven affidavit votes were cast. Smith went on to describe voting as a "critical civic duty." Smith was at City Hall Tuesday evening until well after 10:45 while poll workers were checking and double-checking numbers and packing up equipment.

A resolution passed by the Ridgeland Mayor and Board of Aldermen in April temporarily allowed the 345 residents eligible to vote in a newly annexed area along W. County Line Road to vote in Ward 1 and for alderman-at-large. The voting lines will be redrawn by the board of alderman in the future.

Ward 1 Alderman Ken Heard ran unopposed but new residents were able to vote in the contested alderman-at-large race.

Is China to blame for virus?

The COVID-19 pandemic that arose 18 months ago has killed more than 3.5 million individuals worldwide. The daily body count is thankfully easing, and attention is shifting from solely saving lives to retracing the trail of death to its source. Finger-pointers can wind up digitally challenged, but avoiding future calamity means responsible parties must be held to account.

It is human nature for the guilty to avoid looking in the mirror. China, where the coronavirus inarguably originated, has made it clear that an apology is not forthcoming. As if the lack of Chinese contrition isn't maddening enough, Beijing has stated that it will no longer cooperate with any investigation into the virus' origin.

However, China cannot force the world to unlearn what it already knows. As The Washington Times reported Friday, U.S. intelligence agencies have identified a virus strain studied in the Wuhan Institute of Virology as a possible "backbone for the creation of a pathogenic chimeric virus," pointing to an experimental rather than a natural cause. This echoes what Bill Gertz wrote in The Washington Times in January 2020, and no amount of silencing by Facebook and other media outlets will alter the truth.

As facts come into focus, China is meeting criticism with belligerence. The Chinese Communist Party's semi-official Global Times recently declared the nation must be prepared for an "intense showdown" with the U.S.: "The number of China's nuclear warheads must reach the quantity that makes U.S. elites shiver should they entertain the idea of engaging in a military confrontation with China." In other words, Americans angered by China's affronts must be frightened into silence.

With characteristic bluntness, former President Trump has issued a statement calling for financial compensation: "China should pay $10 trillion to America, and the World, for the death and destruction they have caused!"

But some Americans have their own issues with mirrors. Freedom of Information Act requests have produced more than 3,000 emails, some revealing that while National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases director Anthony Fauci reassured the nation in early 2020 that COVID-19 likely originated in nature, he directed his deputy to study up on whether the Wuhan lab, which his institute partially funds, engaged in "gain of function" research, which can produce deadly pathogens.

The wall of denial is crumbling before emerging evidence that coronavirus is anything but natural. Even President Biden, who rode the public's fear of death into the White House, has bowed to inevitability. He has called for a 90-day investigation into whether the virus originated in a Chinese lab. To wonder why such a query is not automatic is to forget that sometimes the truth hurts. It's a lesson not lost on State Department employees who warned that such an investigation could "open a can of worms," according to Vanity Fair.

There is value in turning the other cheek, but humanity has already done that. COVID-19 is likely the fifth pestilence to emerge from China in the last 20 years, says Trump National Security Adviser Robert O'Brien. If this pandemic proves to be the result of a leaky lab, China must open its checkbook.

— The Washington Times

Embracing technology

Growing up in rural Calhoun County, I learned many things. I learned how to work with my hands, catch a fish, ride around the town square on Saturday nights, and how to get into just a little bit of trouble. What I didn't learn, or know at the time, was how much technology would impact my life, the lives of Mississippians, Americans, and its impact on the global economy. Fast forward several years and I now find myself consulting with the world's largest technology companies like Amazon, Google, and Facebook, to name a few. These are household, marquee companies. What do they desire? Fiber optic connectivity...the bigger, the faster, the better. These companies and many, many others want to connect with you. They want to know everything about your lives...what you eat, what you wear, where you go, what products you use, what car you drive and many other things you would be surprised to know. Regardless, if you agree with this collection of data or not, it happens daily. Some may have some anxiety over the data collection through this "connectivity", but how would you feel if you received a preventative maintenance message from your automobile while driving? One message says, "I need new spark plugs" or a message in August, while driving in the region saying "my A/C needs immediate attention!" Chances are, you would allow your vehicle to make its appointment to be serviced within days, if not hours. Disaster avoided! What if you have dinner guests due to arrive in about an hour, yet you just realize that you forgot a key ingredient for that Garden Club "Dish of the Month"? With no time to run to the market, you open your Kroger app and ask them to deliver the ingredient. Within an hour, an autonomous refrigerator on wheels arrives at your door with the plump shrimp needed for the Shrimp'n Grits dish. Disaster avoided, thanks to technology and connectivity. Similar autonomous deliveries are happening now in Mississippi. For example, here in Oxford on the campus of Ole Miss, Starship Technologies' autonomous, robotic vehicles are delivering food to students and faculty. These vehicles, equipped with modern technology and connectivity, follow sidewalks and traverse crosswalks to deliver food to hungry minds. How convenient is that?

Unfortunately, connectivity and technological investment are not easy things to overcome, but neither was electrifying the entire country, but as a nation we did it. Technological investment is now imperative in order to be economically competitive. The volume of connectivity and bandwidth is infinite and there can never be enough. Technology companies are scouting states and communities for their next locale to set up development of products. They are looking for those states and communities that embrace new technologies, investing in the infrastructure, and passing the public policies that are needed to support these emerging applications. Each day America moves closer and closer to electric and autonomous vehicles and state governments are responding by enacting policies and modifying existing statutes to empower the economy of the future and embrace the technological changes our world is experiencing. For example, in 2017, Texas passed a bill that allows the testing of autonomous vehicle on public roads. In the same year over fifteen other states passed similar measures paving the way for the necessary testing. Public policy is one side of the coin, and the need for infrastructure is the other. A train can't run without a track or the switches to change is destination.

Writer Stewart Brand once said, "Once a new technology rolls over you, if you aren't part of the steamroller, you're part of the road." Each year, graduates from our schools leave Mississippi for careers in neighboring states. Face it, we lose thousands of young minds to Texas, Tennessee, Georgia, and others because we simply have limited, well paying job opportunities in Mississippi. I see this trend often, and I suspect you do too. I'm convinced our state has much more to offer its citizens, its students, and the global economy. Moreover, we must embrace technology and invest in creating better job opportunities here in our beloved State. Let's work to keep young minds here. Let's be pro-active and create a cohesive technology plan that will help us to recruit high tech companies desiring to establish a presence in Mississippi and avoid being left behind in the tech race. It is time for our state to embrace the future, make some changes, and pave the way for our well being and upcoming generations.

Bill Cook is a technology consultant living in Oxford advising, among others, Google.

PATRICK J. BUCHANAN

Kamala vs. Manchin

Manchin, who has the decisive Democratic vote in the Senate, opposes elements of the Dem's platform.

Speaking in Tulsa on the 100th anniversary of the racial atrocity there, Joe Biden belatedly turned to the issue of voting rights, to explain why he is having such difficulty winning passage of the party's priority legislation.

"I hear all the folks on TV saying, 'Why doesn't Biden get this done?'"

"Well, because Biden only has a majority of, effectively, four votes in the House and a tie in the Senate, with two members of the Senate who vote more with my Republican friends."

Biden was referring to Kyrsten Sinema of Arizona and Joe Manchin of West Virginia.

"But we're not giving up," Biden hastily added.

"Earlier this year, the House of Representatives passed For the People Act to protect our democracy. The Senate will take it up later this month, and I'm going to fight like heck with every tool at my disposal for its passage.

"To signify the importance of our efforts, today I'm asking Vice President Harris to help ... lead them. ... With her leadership and your support, we're going to overcome again, I promise you. But it's going to take a hell of a lot of work."

Thus did Biden designate Kamala Harris as his field commander in winning Senate passage of a voting rights bill that would cancel out many GOP victories in state legislatures in enacting voting reforms.

Sunday, Harris, who is also Biden's point person on the border crisis, went to Guatemala to learn what causes Latin American peoples of color to leave the land they were born in and travel 1,000 miles for a chance to live, work and raise their families in a nation established by and for white supremacists.

But when she returns, Harris will face a showdown — with Joe Manchin.

For Manchin, who has the decisive Democratic vote in the Senate, not only opposes elements of the Democrats' voting rights bill. He has declared that ending the Senate filibuster would "be to destroy our government," and he will never cast a vote to kill it.

In April, Manchin was emphatic in The Washington Post, "There is no circumstance in which I will vote to eliminate or weaken the filibuster."

Yet, as long as that filibuster exists, 60 Senate votes are needed to pass major legislation. And if the filibuster is not eliminated, Democratic voting rights proposals don't have a snowball's chance of being enacted.

Hence, if Manchin is telling the truth and holds his ground, Harris is headed for a fruitless and failed assignment this June that will reveal her to be a leader without clout in the Senate whence she came.

Thus, in publicly handing Harris the portfolio on both the Democrats' voting rights bill and border crisis, Biden may have set up his vice president for a great fall and a major humiliation. Yet, Harris is said to have asked Biden for the assignment.

As for Manchin, he is sitting in the catbird seat in the Democratic Party. He holds the whip hand over both Majority Leader Chuck Schumer and Biden. For if the West Virginian refuses to bend or break on the filibuster, then not only will the voting rights bill fail in the Senate, so, too, could gun control, D.C. statehood, climate change, and immigration legislation.

All could suffer the same fate as the Jan. 6 Commission.

The Washington Post reports Senate staffers are saying that there is "panic" in the Democratic caucus that Manchin will stand his ground and refuse to kill the filibuster, no matter the pressure the party puts on him.

Recognition by the White House of the leverage Manchin and Sinema wield was evident in press secretary Jen Psaki's effort to soften Biden's crack about "the two members of the Senate who vote more with my Republican friends."

Psaki brushed aside any suggestion that Biden was being caustic about the two senators saying, "I don't think he was intending to convey anything other than a little bit of commentary on TV punditry."

But the issues and stakes involved are becoming evident to everyone.

A coalition of progressive groups, on Thursday, called on Schumer to hold a Senate vote to kill the filibuster. More than 100 groups sent a letter to the majority leader arguing that the Republican senators who blocked a bill to create a commission to probe the Jan. 6 Capitol attack showed, "it is clearer than ever that the filibuster needs to be eliminated."

The groups added: "We call on you and the Senate Democratic caucus to eliminate the filibuster as a weapon that Sen. McConnell can use to block efforts to defend and strengthen our democracy and make our government work for the American people."

If Joe Manchin holds his ground this June, he will prevail, the filibuster will survive, the For the People Act will die a deserved death, and Joe will become legend in West Virginia.

And if Manchin stands his ground, the big loser is Kamala Harris.

Biden revolution sputters before starting

It's finally dawned on President Joe Biden that he barely controls the House and the Senate.

His remarks last Tuesday taking a swipe at Sens. Joe Manchin of West Virginia and Kyrsten Sinema of Arizona were notable less for how they publicly aired an intraparty dispute than for their utter banality.

"I hear all the folks on TV saying, 'Why doesn't Biden get this done?'" he said, referring to himself in the third person in classic Washington fashion. "Well, because Biden only has a majority of effectively four votes in the House and a tie in the Senate, with two members of the Senate who vote more with my Republican friends."

Of course, he's completely right (except for the part about Manchin and Sinema voting with Republicans — they are reliable Democratic votes).

Not only is it true that Biden has narrow majorities, this is likely to be a defining feature of his presidency. Unforeseen events always take a hand, but it seems likely that one of the headlines at the end of the Biden years will be, "The president had vaulting ambitions, frustrated by razor-thin (and perhaps, temporary) legislative majorities."

Somehow, this was apparently passed over or brushed aside at Biden's session with liberal historians at the White House that focused on how he could be a transformative leader in the mold of FDR or LBJ.

And it didn't figure in the spate of wishful commentary around the time of the passage of the COVID-19 relief bill that Biden was indeed on track to be the next FDR.

Of course, Franklin Roosevelt had a historic majority in the House and a healthy majority in the Senate, which were what made it possible for him to be FDR. Needless to say, he wasn't complaining that a couple of wayward Democrats were keeping him from doing anything shortly after the completion of his first 100 days.

The left's reaction to Biden's predicament is to blame Manchin for being so stubbornly supportive of the filibuster.

Rev. William J. Barber II, a civil rights leader, told The Washington Post in frustration, "They need to let Manchin understand we elected Joe Biden — not Joe Manchin — to be president."

True enough, although many voters surely believed they were electing someone like Manchin as president — an old-school pragmatist who'd object at overturning a long-standing Senate practice in a headlong rush to try to match the legislative output of transformational progressive presidents.

Manchin has been the focus of attention on the filibuster, so much so that he's complained about reporters badgering him about it. Sinema, though, sounds equally adamant and there are other

Senate Democrats who would go along with it if the party decided to go nuclear, but have no enthusiasm for the idea.

Regardless, on a number of high-profile issues like the $15 minimum wage and the H.R. 1 voting bill, Biden's problem isn't getting to 60 votes to overcome a filibuster. It's getting to 50 for a simple majority.

That the White House has been so willing to try to negotiate with Senate Republicans on infrastructure is probably a sign that it doesn't have 50 votes for the current Biden proposal, either.

There's no doubt that Biden is going to be able to spend a lot of money, although a new ruling from the Senate parliamentarian has dashed the hopes of Democrats that they might be able to use reconciliation — the budget process that bypasses the filibuster — multiple times this year.

But big, sweeping measures — like the voting bill, climate legislation and immigration changes — are out of reach absent a sea change.

A couple of months from now, it could be obvious that the highly touted Biden revolution is sputtering to a stop before it even gets started.

If so, the fault won't be Manchin's or Sinema's, or in our stars, but in the simple fact that Biden doesn't have enough votes in Congress — never did and never will.

BIBLICAL PERSPECTIVES/J. Ligon Duncan III

The rule of Christ in the home

Please turn in your Bibles to Colossians 3:18-21. In verses 9-17, we saw the Apostle Paul apply the principle of the rule of Christ to our life within the local church. In this passage, we see the Apostle Paul apply the principle of the rule of Christ to the family life. Paul wants us to recognize that the supremacy of Christ is worked out practically in the lives of Christians at home. He wants us to understand that godliness is best reflected in family life. As such, Paul gives us four concise directives for the Christian family life. First, Paul tells us that wives are to be submissive to their husbands. Secondly, he says that husbands are to love their wives. Thirdly, Paul tells us that children are to obey their parents. Fourthly and finally, he says that fathers are not to provoke their children.

I. Wives Be Submissive To Your Husbands.

In verse 18, Paul says, "Wives, be subject to your husbands as is fitting in the Lord." This is a controversial command in our day and age. But it is important to remember that Paul's word is based on broad-based biblical teaching. For example, in 1 Timothy 2:13-14, Paul says that the headship of husbands in the home is based on the way God created man and woman and on the results of the fall. Both in this passage and also in Ephesians chapter 5:23, he gives a direct biblical mandate that wives are to be submissive to their husbands, and that husbands are to be the head of their homes. Furthermore, in 1 Corinthians 11:14, he says that nature itself teaches that men are to have headship in the home.

Paul's call to submission entails at least three things. First, Paul calls wives to a practical recognition of the divinely given order of the household. Paul wants wives to know that this is not only how God has made things to be, but He has made things to be that way for their good. His is the divinely given order of the household, and when His order is reversed, when these roles are reversed, just like with Adam and Eve in the fall, it always results not only in the destruction of the man, but in the self-destruction of the wife. Secondly, he is calling for a practical recognition of the husband's authority under God. This is a recognition that the man bears certain responsibilities before the living God for which one day he will give an accounting at the throne of God. It is an awesome thing to be appointed the head of the household. And Paul is encouraging wives to recognize the awesome weight of responsibility that the husband has and to support him in it. Finally, Paul's call for submission entails the wife's sacrificial self-giving loyalty to her husband. In other words, Paul calls upon wives to show that type of sacrificial loyalty which Christ Himself shows to His people.

II. Husbands Love Your Wives.

In verse 19, Paul gives a command to Christian husbands to love their wives. Is it not interesting that the New Testament commands love. We don't think today very often about commanding love. But Paul turns to husbands and says, "Love your wives. It is not an option. It is not something peripheral to your obligations." In these commands, Paul is telling us that the wife's submission and the husband's love form reciprocal duties within the marital relationship. There are mutual obligations and responsibilities beautifully meeting, and interestingly going against our natural tendencies. And yet, Paul calls on the two of them, in their mutual relationships, to fulfill these reciprocal responsibilities.

It is also important to notice that Paul calls on men to show not just a romantic love, but to show that self-giving love which Christ has shown to the church, that love which looks out for the other's best interest, and desires to up build the person who is being loved. Furthermore, Paul adds a practical test of love for husbands. Specifically, he says, "Husbands, love your wives and do not be embittered against them." In other words, the Apostle Paul is saying, "Love your wife and do not be harsh. Love her with your lips and heart." Paul knew that man's love for his own wife was not only a blessing for her, it was a blessing for him.

III. Children Obey Your Parents.

In verse 20, Paul says, "Children, be obedient to your parents in all things, for this is well-pleasing to the Lord." In the midst of all of the horrible sins listed by Paul in Romans 1:28-32 is disobedience to parents. We cannot say that Christ is Lord and live lives of perversion and continual disobedience to our parents. God takes obedience to parents very seriously. It is a manifestation of the rule of Christ in our lives. And notice the motivation in Paul's command. He says that children are to be obedient to their parents because "it is well-pleasing to the Lord." Paul is reminding us here of the truth that the heavenly Father takes pleasure in our obedience to our parents.

IV. Fathers Do Not Provoke Your Children.

Finally, in verse 21, Paul says, "Fathers, do not exasperate your children, that they may not lose heart." Paul's command here for fathers, is specifically that they would not dishearten and discourage their children in the context of discipline. We may ask, "Why not mothers here?" And perhaps the answer is apparent. Perhaps it is that fathers have more of a tendency to be heavy handed in the criticism and discipline than do the mothers. His is a warning against destructive and continual criticism, a warning against overly severe punishment that would break the spirit of a child. So Paul is saying, "Be careful fathers, as you discipline, as you rear your child in the correction of the Lord, do not be destructive and continual in your criticism of them so that they lose heart." In other words, punishment and correction, though it must be done, must be done and balanced with the positive discipline of the Lord. Paul is calling fathers to rear their children in such a way that they will not feel only the rebuke of God, but they will also feel His approval.

Notice, also, that there is a necessity of grace as we seek to be Christians in the home. We could not do these things were it not for grace. Husbands and wives are sinners. Parents and children are sinners. Only the grace of God can help us. Here, perhaps more than anywhere else, we are shown the depth of our sin. And though that is a discouraging thing, it's the first step towards encouragement, because when we realize that we can't do it on our own we are precisely at the point where God wants us. May God, by His Holy Spirit, enable us to live godly family lives in sole dependence upon Him.

Getting the Message/Rev. Chris Shelton

Hell is a place of gnashing of teeth

There is no more surprising conversion than Saul of Tarsus. He changes from a creature with tireless zeal to persecute the church to a man whose ministry had more far-reaching effects than any other in Christian history.

The apostle Paul will later describe his pre-conversion nature as one of "raging fury" against Christians. He had a hellish disposition. Jesus taught that hell is a place of gnashing of teeth and darkness. Saul is described this way. In Acts 8:3, he was "ravaging the church," an expression of a wild beast tearing a body apart.

In Acts 9:1, he is "breathing threats and murder against the disciples of the Lord." After he is converted, "something like scales fell from his eyes," indicating that he was a man who was blind to the spiritual life of God (verse 18).

Sin gives us a taste of hell. All men suppress the truth of God in order to protect their sin, whether it is vanity, immorality, or anything in between. Saul attacked the church because it proclaimed the truth of God, and commanded people they must repent. This message was good news because for Saul because he was headed for destruction, but it meant he was wrong about how he was living.

He was a legalist, and that spirit boasts in its own righteousness. It generates more anger, more indignation toward God and men. Jesus said the converts of the Pharisees were made twice more the children of hell as a result of the teaching they received. And Saul was the most dedicated Pharisee.

But the Lord was gracious to Saul. The conversion of Saul encourages the worst sinner that Christ is sufficient for you. Paul will say that he is a standing example of mercy to the worst of sinners (1 Timothy 1:16). It is the kindness of God that leads you to repentance and life in Christ.

When we look at Paul's conversion, we should remember that people come to know Christ in different ways. Timothy grew up learning of Christ from his mother and grandmother. The Ethiopian eunuch was unexpectedly joined by Philip to point him to Christ. The Samaritans disliked Jews, but a Jewish man brought the gospel to them, and many were converted.

What is true of every Christian is that the best providence in their lives is that by which God brings the gospel to them, and they hear and believe. John Flavel wrote of conversion: "In nothing does providence shine forth more gloriously. You are more beholden to him for this than for all of your other mercies. I cannot but think that your heart must be deeply affected by the thought of it. It is certainly the sweetest history ever told."

Saul was interrupted in his path to destruction by the light of Christ. As the light from heaven shone around the shepherds at Christ's birth, so the light suddenly shone around Saul, knocking him to the ground (Acts 9:3). An element of conversion is that the Spirit of God enlightens the mind to knowledge of Christ.

In 2nd Corinthians 4, Paul equates the conversion of a soul to the work of God in creation: "God said 'Let there be light', or 'Let light shine out of darkness.' This light will promote the exaltation of Christ, his person and work. His place in our heart will correspond to how we see his exaltation.

This soon became evident in Saul. Already he begins to pray to Christ. When the Lord tells his servant Ananias to go and seek Saul, Ananias is hesitant because he is all too familiar with the murderous ambitions of Saul. But the Lord said of Saul, "Behold he prays (verse 11)." Charles Spurgeon wrote one of his most well-known sermons on this verse about genuine prayer.

Saul went from desires to persecute Christ to praying in his name. Saul, as a Pharisee, would have prayed for hours a day. Pharisees were exceedingly disciplined in knowing the Scriptures and practicing all the spiritual disciplines such as praying. But legitimate prayer is only through Christ. He alone gives us access to the throne of God.

Now instead of being a child of destruction, Saul is a child of God. He no longer had hateful desires, but his soul thirsted after the living God. What he did, he now did in view of the mercies of God. Paul would say, "The life I now live I live by faith in the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me."

Madison teen rebounds from ice storm injury

By SUSAN CHRISTENSEN
Health and Research News Service

Before heading to work during February's ice storm, Dr. Patrick Wright spent the morning pulling sleds behind his riding lawn mower.

It was great fun for his family. But Mississippi's rare sledding weather proved treacherous for some rookie riders.

By afternoon, Wright and three of his colleagues were treating a blizzard of broken bones at Children's of Mississippi in Jackson.

"I think I fixed about a half-dozen fractured legs in just 48 hours," said the pediatric orthopedic surgeon.

Among the wounded was 13-year-old Cris Hairston of Madison. On Feb. 13, he was sledding behind a golf cart when he was sent hurtling toward a hefty mailbox in his Grayhawk neighborhood.

"I tried to get off at the last second, but I slammed into it," he said. "I knew I had broken my leg. It hurt really bad."

Minutes later, his dad, Kyle Hairston, answered the doorbell and found a group of distraught teens on his porch. "Their eyes were really big, and I could tell something was bad wrong by the look on their faces."

Kyle arrived at the accident site to find a neighbor who was a nurse practitioner taking charge of the scene. She guided the group as Cris was put on a makeshift stretcher and slid into the back of the family SUV.

Due to icy streets, it took a tense 45 minutes to get to the nearest hospital, which was typically just 10 minutes away.

"They only got one X-ray picture and said this is all we need to see," Kyle said. It was obvious Cris needed the skilled orthopedic surgeons at Children's to repair his fractured left femur.

Once he was ready for rehab, there was no question where Cris would do therapy. As an employee of Methodist Rehabilitation Center in Jackson, Kyle knew his son would profit from the seasoned staff and advanced technology at Methodist Outpatient Therapy in Ridgeland.

Today, Cris is close to coming full circle. And physical therapist Elizabeth Rich said his comeback has a lot to do with his can-do spirit. "Nothing has fazed him so far," she said. "He's not scared to try new things."

One of his favorite therapies has been sessions on the AlterG Anti-Gravity Treadmill. The NASA-inspired technology can offload as much as 80 percent of a user's body weight, providing a means to practice walking and even running early on.

"Anything that takes the weight off is important for getting motion back in the hip and knee—the joints above and below the injury," Dr. Wright said.

During AlterG sessions, Cris's lower body is encased in a waist-high plastic chamber filled with load-lifting, pressurized air. Treadmill controls adjust the pressure, creating a low-impact, workout zone where he can walk or run forward, backward or at an incline.

Through the treadmill's Stride Smart visual feedback system, Cris is also able to see how much weight he's carrying on each leg and work toward a balanced gait.

While young people typically bounce back from leg fractures fairly quickly, recovery still comes in stages.

"Usually kiddos will stay off the leg about two weeks then gradually go to full weight-bearing in about six weeks," Dr. Wright said. "Limping is usually gone in about three months."

Cris got extra stability from having a metal rod inserted in the center of his femur, but that is not a given for all femur fractures.

"There's a lot of ways to treat them, and the treatment does need to be guided by age and skeletal maturity," Dr. Wright said.

Such customization is also important during therapy sessions, and Cris's exercises—which ranged from stair climbing to Pilates sessions—were chosen to address specific goals.

"We want to make sure he can do all he wants to do, and he's able to progress safely," Rich said.

Kyle said he's seen his son come a long way, and none too soon. "He's not the kind of kid who can sit around and play video games. He likes to be outside. So a few of his therapists have given me ideas of things he can do to heal faster."

Lately, father and son have been playing disc and regular golf and pedaling on bike paths. And Cris is determined to get back to two favorite pastimes, competitive soccer and being a member of the Mississippi Blues Composite Mountain Biking team.

All in all, Cris said the incident was "pretty scary" and he's glad he had on a full face helmet to protect his head.

As far as sledding, he has one piece of advice for Southerners taking up the sport: "Make sure there are no mailboxes."

2-year-old accidentally shoots, kills 9-year-old

CANTON — A 9-year-old boy who was shot in the head on June 2 after his 2-year-old sister found their mother's gun under the seat of the car they were in has died, officials said.

Officials have confirmed the victim is Ashton Walden, a second-grader at Reuben B.

Myers School of Arts and Sciences in Canton.

"We are saddened to share the loss of our rising third-grader, Ashton Walden," reads a Friday afternoon post on the Facebook page of the Reuben B. Myers School. "We ask that you please keep Ashton's family and friends, along with the Reuben B. Myers family, uplifted during this difficult time."

Walden had been listed in stable condition at the University of Mississippi Medical Center the afternoon of June 2 but succumbed to his injuries June 3, officials said.

Canton Police Chief Otha Brown said the incident occurred just before noon Wednesday when a mother, whose name has not yet been made public, left three children ages 2, 9 and 10 in a vehicle outside of a house she was visiting on Hargon Street in Canton.

"She keeps her weapon under her seat," Brown said. "One of the children was able to get the weapon and shot another child. The 2-year-old shot the 9-year-old."

Brown said no charges had been filed as of the afternoon of June 4 and any possible charges would be pending an investigation.

"We know the mom is grieving right now, but we did express to her that at a later date she may be facing charges once we present everything to the district attorney's office," Brown said June 3. "It would probably be a child neglect charge."

Brown said parents should not leave young children unattended.

"If you have got a weapon, you sure need to place it away in safekeeping, maybe in a lockbox or something but not in the vehicle where a child can find it," Brown said. "Our prayers go out to the family."

City

They were all selected by a citizens committee headed up by longtime Gluckstadt resident Kerry Minninger and others some years back as part of the filing process for incorporation.

Morrison encouraged everyone who would like to attend the June 22 meeting and to take an active role in helping develop the new city.

"It is very humbling," Morrison said of the work ahead. "We have a lot of work to do."

Among items on the city's agenda for the first official meeting after officials take their oaths of office will be to determine which city positions are elected or appointed,

"We have some recommendations, some housekeeping items that should be on that agenda," Mills said Monday. "Under Mississippi's Code Charter form of government, there are certain offices that are elected unless they are made appointed."

For example, the city clerk, city judge, chief of police are elective offices unless by ordinance and the mayor and board make them appointed.

"Of course, those are offices that in my opinion clearly should be appointed," the said. "They just don't lend themselves to elections so that is one of the first recommendations that I will make."

Other items for the first agenda include setting official meeting dates for the board, which is outlined in the Mississippi Code Charter form of government in the state's 1890 constitution, as being on the first and third Tuesday of each month.

Mills said it is important to have regular meeting dates so people will know when their government meets.

"They need to set a meeting date and one of the things we are obviously trying to impress on them is the importance of compliance with the open meetings act and the open records act," Mills said. "Those are two things they need to consider early on."

Mills has also worked on recent successful incorporations of the cities of Byram and Diamondhead.

All of the decisions will need to be decided in the city's early meeting, Mills said.

"Fabulous!" is the response from alderman Lisa Williams to Gluckstadt finally being incorporated.

"It is very exciting. There has been a lot of emotion over the last few weeks since we did get the news of the Supreme Court's ruling. A lot of activity, phone calls, inquiries and I'm looking forward to just like I did the first time I was contacted to participate in this whole effort, being a part of this, being a part of the city, being a part of the growth and helping Gluckstadt become what Gluckstadt is going to become."

Minninger too said he is excited.

"Well, it feels great!" Minninger said. "I don't know if reality has set in yet. Of course, they have a lot of items they are going to have to address."

Williams said she is ready to get down to business.

"I just appreciate the citizen support, the encouragement along the way," Williams said. "The attorneys are a wonderful group of legal advisors, the urban planner that we have corresponded with for many years, Mr. Chris Watson is in Oxford at Bridge and Watson a wealth of information. ... I'm so, so excited for the city of Gluckstadt to be at this point and start our new city."
