Madison County Sheriff's deputies have launched a campaign to rebuild the home of their colleague, Deputy Brad Sullivan, who survived multiple gunshot wounds in 2019 and has been on the long road to recovery ever since.

"A lot was taken from Brad that day," Lt. Joey Butler said. "And we need to give a lot back to

A Home for Brad is the product of Madison County Sheriff's Department Deputies Butler and Dwayne Moak. The goal is to build a home that will accommodate Sullivan's needs so that he can live as independently as possible.

"This is going to be an expensive project," Moak said. "Not only have the cost of building supplies skyrocketed, but everything in Brad's home will have to be customized, adding expense, so it's important we reach as many people as possible.

The Home Builders Association of Jackson will be coordinating the construction of the home through Kirkland Development, Charter Homes, HouseWorks and other HBAJ entities.

The judge handed down a sentence of 210 years of 35 years per count for Egbert to be served consecutively.

Sullivan has been wheelchair bound and lost vision in his right eye since Egbert shot him as he fled deputies on Sept. 5, 2019.

GermanFest this Sunday in Gluckstadt

By JOHN LEE john@onlinemadison.com

GLUCKSTADT - Get ready to celebrate German culture with bratwurst, sauerkraut and polka music at the annual GermanFest on Sunday.

Festivities are set to begin at 11 a.m. on the grounds of St. Joseph Catholic Church.

The festival will last until 5 p.m. with plenty of food options and activities, including bratwurst with sauerkraut, homemade desserts, jams and jellies, arts and crafts, games for children, a German band (the Polkameisters from Tulsa, Oklahoma), and more.

All activities this year are outdoors, and organizers are asking everyone to bring chairs and blankets.

Pam Minninger, lay ecclesial minister at St. Joseph Catholic Church, said the church has been "hot and heavy" preparing for the festi-

"We've been preparing for a long time, and preparations are almost complete," Minninger said earlier this week. Minninger said masks are encouraged but not required of those attending the festival. "Attendees can do whatever makes others feel safe and comfortable," she said. "Everyone will be spread out with their blankets and chairs outdoors, so this will be safe for everyone." St. Joseph also asks each people attending to make three different desserts for the dessert booth at the festival. If someone is unable to bake something organizers are requesting a $40 donation to cover the cost of others who baked in mass quantity. Desserts should be brought to the Parish Hall on Saturday morning (Sept. 25) so they can be cut, wrapped and prepared for serving.

Advance meal tickets are $7 each and are available to purchase from parishioners of St. Joseph Catholic Church. For ticket information, call the parish office at 601-856-2054. Meals on the day of the festival are $8.

To find St. Joseph Church, take Exit 112 from Interstate 55 North, and go west for three-quarters of a mile. Admission and parking for the festival are free.

Volleyball facility planned for Ridgeland

By DUNCAN DENT scott@onlinemadison.com

An eight-court volleyball facility is set to make Ridgeland it's new home as early as March, owners said.

Jenny Hazelwood, owner and club director of Infinity Volleyball currently located in Flowood, said that they have begun construction on a new facility in Ridgeland off of Harbour Pointe Crossing behind Bulldog Burger.

"We are excited to move to be in Ridgeland," Hazelwood said. "We have the perfect location. It really could not be any more ideal. I think it will benefit our athletes and their families so much."

Most recently the facility was granted a conditional use permit by the Ridgeland Board of Aldermen to operate an indoor recreation facility used for training, practice and competitions at the property at their Sept. 7 meeting.

Infinity Volleyball offers girls ages 8 to 18 the opportunity to play on recreational and club volleyball teams.

Since they started in 2016, Hazelwood said they have grown to about 235 girls involved in 17 club volleyball teams, meaning they are on competitive teams that travel to games and tournaments throughout the country and get views from college scouts.

She said the Ridgeland facility could support as many as 19 club teams when they start. Recreational volleyball teams play each other at the infinity volleyball facility and Hazelwoods says it is a great way for girls to get involved in the sport.

"We have been growing steadily each year and volleyball is growing across the country," Hazelwood said. "It is the most participated in sport for females."

Hazelwood said the sport is particularly popular in Texas, the midwest and California. She said Infinity Volleyball is a good opportunity to catch the growing popularity of the sport and introduce girls in the state to the sport.

"We noticed we have some phenomenal athletes in Mississippi but volleyball was not a sport they were choosing,"

Hazelwood said. "We have a lot of young kids whose parents bring them in who have never played volleyball but said, 'I want to try that."

Infinity currently has girls from all over the Jackson Metro region and a handful that travel as far as Memphis to be on their teams. Hazelwood said the new location would hopefully open up their facilities to more interested young women in Madison County.

Specifically, Hazelwood said they had stopped their recreational volleyball operations during the COVID-19 pandemic but said the new facility would offer enough room to restart that service. At the time, she said they had about 100 girls signed up and expect to have as many as 200 when they get going again.

Hazelwood said current projections have construction completed and the doors open by March.

"We are just praying for good weather and that everything gets delivered on time and all that," she said. "God has blessed us a lot in this. Our success has been a God thing."

Before opening Infinity, Hazelwood was the Head Volleyball Coach at Mississippi State University for six years and has 13 years of experience coaching at the Division I level. She played for the Lady Bulldogs in college and has served as USA Volleyball Junior National Team Assistant Coach. She also works for ESPN and the SEC Network as an analyst.

McCollum to retire, Hart to lead city's public works

By DUNCAN DENT duncan@onlinemadison.com

RIDGELAND — City officials announced Monday the appointment of Alan Hart, the current community development director, to the head of the city's Public Works Department effective Oct. 1.

Mayor Gene McGee said he knew Hart was the obvious choice to lead public works when Mike McCollum announced his plans to retire earlier this.

"Alan's leadership, talent, positive attitude, vision and undeniable devotion to the City and its citizens is why the board and I made the decision to combine two major departments and appoint Alan to lead both," McGee said.

Currently, director of community development, Hart's position will encompass the directorships of both public works and its newly acquired community development subdivision.

The decision to assign Hart this dual role, commencing Oct. 1, was unanimously approved by the mayor and board of aldermen and materialized after the retirement announcement of long-time public works director McCollum.

"First and foremost, I'd like to thank the mayor and board for entrusting me to undertake one of our city's most important roles," Hart said. "I'm humbled they have this level of faith in me, and I'm ecstatic to lead the city's best employees as we continue to frame Ridgeland as the best city in the State of Mississippi. Secondly, I am entirely grateful to Mike McCollum for his 27 years of service to the City of Ridgeland and his leadership as public works director. I am appreciative of the structured department he has built."

McCollum said he has full confidence in his successor and thinks the department will only continue to grow and offer the best service possible.

"Alan Hart is a smart, competent and hard-working person and I know he has the confidence of the mayor and myself," McCollum said. "I think Ridgeland and the Public Works Department have the best days ahead with him at the helm."

Hart said he looks forward to encouraging a more service-oriented department and continuing to provide citizens with the best place to live. In addition, he plans to work with McCollum and supervisors and build positive working relationships with all employees in public works to allow for the smoothest transition possible.

Hired in 2005, Hart's goal at the time was to make every effort to continue to help posture Ridgeland for a brighter future and maintain the economic vitality and small-town heritage, city officials said. While serving as the director of community development, Hart and his team have managed over $1 billion in permitted construction for the City of Ridgeland.

His involvement in various projects in the last 16 years includes the 2008 Ridgeland Area Master Plan, the Butler Snow building, the Township, Renaissance, the Northpark renovation, Costco and the Ridgeland City Hall building.

"I have been blessed with a supportive mayor and board, and these finished projects would never have been a reality without their vision to incorporate a strong economic development plan for the city," Hart said.

Alderman-at-Large D.I. Smith said Hart has most recently shown his commitment to the city in being an instrumental part of the city's fight against a second proposed landfill west of town.

"Alan Hart is the one we turn to when the chips are down and there are near-insurmountable challenges, such as fighting the big out-of-state landfill company who didn't care what impact it had on our health, welfare and safety," Smith said. "He has a spontaneous, contagious enthusiasm that motivates everyone to achieve their best. I'm so proud he has been chosen for this role. He – and the City of Ridgeland – will excel."

McCollum will retire at the end of the month. He addressed the city board at Tuesday's regularly held meeting. McCollum thanked the mayor and board of aldermen and said he would be more than happy to help with Hart's transition into the position.

"If you need me, call me," McCollum said.

During McCollum's tenure, he has overseen a number of large projects including the White Oak Creek Sewer, several water wells, Lake Harbour Widening, County Line Road improvements and its extension. McCollum said he also took advantage of grant funding when available, bringing more than $100 million in grant money in for city projects.

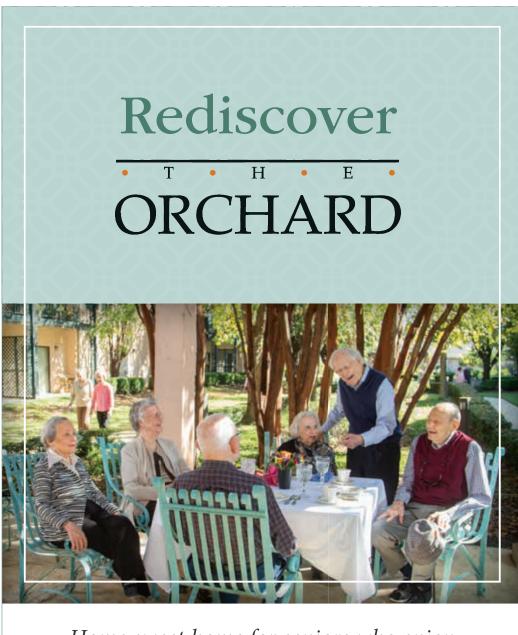

The Veteran's Garden at the brand new city hall was a project overseen by McCollum during the construction of the new city hall building. Hart served on the board for the monument with McCollum where their primary function was to sell sponsorships for the park in the form of memorial bricks.

McCollum started with the city in June 1994. He said it has been a great place live and work.

"Ridgeland is a great place to work and raise a family," McCollum said. "I appreciated the leadership and tenure of Mayor McGee his vision and stability are key to all of Ridgeland's successes. The Mayor and Board supported my 31-year military career in the Army Reserve and is the best place in the world to work."

McCollum said his retirement schedule is filling up. He hopes to spend time with his grandchildren, travel and hunt and fish. He also hopes to dedicate some time to his music.

The corona info-coaster

Roller coasters are exhilarating, but for those who find them scary, the best part of the ride is getting off. Americans have been stuck on the coronavirus info-coaster for more than a year and see no end to the breathless vaccine advisories. Officialdom could alleviate some of the angst by simply standing clear and leaving the bedside manner to doctors.

President Biden has spent 2021 fighting the information controls, first promising the return of customary freedom by the Fourth of July only to darken September with threats against Americans who remain vaccine-free. "We've been patient, but our patience is wearing thin, and your refusal has cost all of us," Mr. Biden growled recently.

Targeting as many as 100 million Americans, Mr. Biden ordered federal workers, plus businesses with 100 or more employees, to be vaxxed or tested weekly for the virus. Refuseniks face termination. So much for the sacrosanct principle of women's health — "my body, my choice." Even before the president's command, though, most women and men alike had already shown up for the shot. The U.S. Centers for Disease and Prevention reports that 76.1 percent of U.S. adults — more than 210 million — have received at least one vaccine dose.

At the same time, a smaller majority — 60 percent — of respondents to an Axios/Ipsos poll support the president's vaccine mandates for both federal employees and Americans working in the private sector; 39 percent oppose the mandates. To their credit, Americans are apparently more willing to take the shot themselves than watch Uncle Joe force others to do so.

Activists, progressives demand reversal of parliamentarian ruling against amnesty provision

Neither the president nor his advisers have adequately addressed the question that lingers over the vax-or-not-to-vax issue: What about natural immunity, the human body's innate defense against disease, and its ability to fight pathogens by building additional defenses?

Asked recently whether individuals who have already recovered from COVID-19 should still be required to get the vaccine, White House chief medical adviser Dr. Anthony Fauci replied he could provide no "really firm answer."

No, really? A large proportion of the nation falls into this category. National Institutes of Health Director Francis Collins points out in a recent NIH blog that last year's estimate of 20 million U.S. coronavirus infections was worthless: "A recent article published in Nature offers a more-comprehensive estimate that puts the true number of infections by the end of 2020 at more than 100 million."

With recorded cases currently approaching 42 million, the actual number of infections — including symptom-free ones — could by now total multiples of the 100 million Mr. Biden has demanded must choose between jab and job. And 99 percent recover.

Most Americans are either already vaxxed, have natural immunity from catching the virus, or both. Mr. Biden should put the brakes on his coronavirus info-coaster, let doctors treat patients without government interference, and remedy his own ailing presidential performance.

Unnecessary wars

In a diplomatic coup, Prime Minister Scott Morrison announced a deal last week with the U.K. and U.S. to have those Anglo-American allies help build a nuclear-powered submarine fleet for Australia.

PATRICK J. BUCHANAN

A $66 billion French deal to provide Canberra with diesel electric-powered submarines, among the largest defense contracts Paris had ever negotiated, was blown off.

"A stab in the back!" said Foreign Minister Jean-Yves Le Drian, who had been kept in the dark on the secret talks. "There has been duplicity, contempt and lies." Le Drian compared President Joe Biden to former President Donald Trump.

President Emmanuel Macron recalled his ambassadors to both the U.S. and Australia. In two centuries of U.S.-French diplomatic relations, no such recall had ever occurred.

What does this Australia First submarine deal mean?

Canberra, which has sought to steer a middle course between its great customer China and its great ally America, is coming down on the side of the Americans in the rising great-power quarrel.

This "AUXUS" partnership, says Beijing, will "severely damage" peace and stability in the Indo-Pacific, and Beijing is demanding to know whether Australia regards China as a "partner or a threat."

This new clash comes as China is using its military to speak for its claims to islands and islets hundreds of miles off its coast.

Several Chinese claims collide directly with the territorial claims of neighbors who are longtime U.S. treaty allies for whose territory we are committed to fight.

China claims, for example, the Paracel and Spratly Islands and almost all of the rocks and reefs in the South China Sea, many of which are within territorial waters claimed by Vietnam, Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia, Brunei, the Philippines and Taiwan.

Are the US and China stumbling toward an "Islands War"?

China also claims Taiwan itself, 110 miles off its coast, as well as the nearby Senkaku Islands, which Japan controls and for which Tokyo appears to be preparing to fight. A Chinese-Japanese clash over the Senkakus, the Biden administration has said, will bring the U.S. in on the side of Japan.

In a recent CNN interview, Japan's Defense Minister Nobuo Kishi said the Senkakus would be defended as Japanese national territory.

And Japan has been expanding its Self-Defense Forces, adding the latest U.S. F-35 fighters, converting warships into aircraft carriers, and building new destroyers, submarines and missiles.

Earlier this year, the Biden State Department said the U.S.-Japan security treaty covers the Senkakus and our Philippines security treaty covers Manila's claims to Chinese-occupied islets in the South China Sea.

Message: If Manila chooses to fight to retrieve its islets from Chinese occupation and control, America will fight on Manila's side.

Still, China has yet to back down from any of its claims.

It has sailed warships and planes to hassle U.S. and allied ships and planes in the South China and East China Seas and sent fleets of bombers and fighters into airspace on Taiwan's side of the Taiwan Strait.

To prevent Taiwan's independence, Beijing has said, it will fight.

Should fighting break out between China and the U.S. over these claims, the war would be about islands that are thousands of miles from our West Coast but within a few hundred miles of the China coast.

Other East Asian nations are also communicating their interests and intent through military demonstrations.

After claiming to have tested a new long-range cruise missile, North Korea last week tested two ballistic missiles. At that same time, South Korea was testing its own submarine-launched ballistic missile, becoming the first country without nuclear weapons to do

This past summer, there were reports that Pyongyang had restarted a reactor in its main nuclear complex at Yongbyon, suggesting that Kim Jong Un may be ramping up his nuclear weapons program.

And, regularly now, U.S. planes stationed in Alaska scramble to intercept Russian military aircraft. This year, the number of intercepts, 14, is on pace to set a record since the Cold War. In the most recent case, two Russian bombers and two fighters came within 30 miles of the Alaskan coast.

This summer, Russian naval vessels came within 34 miles of Hawaii.

Russian ships and planes off Alaska are perhaps responding to U.S. warships and planes in the Black Sea.

World War II began in Europe when the British, Sept. 3, 1939, declared war on Germany over its invasion of Poland to retrieve what Berlin claimed were its territories, including Danzig, taken from Germany at Versailles against the will of the people of Danzig and in violation of their right of self-determination.

If World War III breaks out between China and the U.S., it is likely to be over islands of Asia claimed by China, with the U.S. fighting not for its own territory but for the island territory of allies, probably islands in no way vital to the security of the United States.

Which is how world powers often end their days as world powers, fighting unnecessary wars on behalf of other nations.

Patrick J. Buchanan is the author of "Nixon's White House Wars: The Battles That Made and Broke a President and Divided America Forever."

Dems keeping 'the people' out

Generals always fight the last war, so the saying goes. Politicians don't dress in uniform, but they, too, obsess over past conflicts. It is the unwillingness of Democrats controlling Congress to move past the tumult of Jan. 6 that has spurred a decision to harden the U.S. Capitol against Americans seeking a redress of grievances over the treatment of that day's protesters. Once again, "the people" are not welcome at "the people's house."

Anticipating Saturday's "Justice for J6" rally at nearby Union Square, the U.S. Capitol Police, overseen in part by Congress, has ordered reinstallation of high chain-link fencing thrown up around the Capitol between Jan. 6 and the Jan. 20 inauguration of President Biden. While thousands marched in January from the "Save America" Rally on the Ellipse up Capitol Hill to dispute election irregularities, only a few hundred are expected for the weekend event.

Their cause has some merit. While House Speaker Nancy Pelosi has characterized the Jan. 6 uproar as an "insurrection," no one has been charged with a crime of that enormity. Instead of the 600-plus individuals arrested, some engaged in bully-boy clashes with police, rightly resulting in charges such as "inflicting bodily injury upon officers."

Others, though, simply strolled the halls of Congress after the fashion of tourists. Unaware of their transgressions, among the charges they face are "entering and remaining in a restricted building or grounds" — essentially trespassing.

Nine months on, an unknown number charged with violent behavior are still reportedly behind bars at the D.C. Central Detention Facility. In contrast, perpetrators of riot, arson, and murder during the nation-wracking George Floyd upheaval of 2020 have been more readily freed on bond.

Whites backing Trump "more likely" to become evangelicals between 2016 and 2020: Pew study

To be sure, there are legitimate reasons for political figures to fear for their lives. The just-passed 20th anniversary of 9/11 rekindled dreadful memories of the day when a terrorist-commandeered passenger jet drew a bead on the U.S. Capitol Building but never arrived, thankfully. Since then, deranged gunmen have, on two separate occasions, wounded a member of Congress, though neither one near Capitol Hill.

There is a price to pay for Democrats' attempt to characterize civil discord as a civil war. A Rasmussen poll earlier this week found that 49 percent of likely voters either strongly or somewhat agree with the contention that the U.S. government is holding political prisoners. In disagreement with that view were 42 percent; another 9 percent were unsure. It is clear the public isn't buying the insurrection label placed on the Jan. 6 protesters.

With their own job approval scraping bottom at 28 percent, according to Statistica.com, members of Congress only add to their unpopularity when they hastily seal themselves off from the public.

Look Ahead America, sponsor of Saturday's "Justice for J6" gathering, plans to recite the Pledge of Allegiance, sing patriotic songs and pray. That doesn't sound like a Capitol offense.

RICH LOWRY

2020 is toxic for Republicans

The best indication that Larry Elder was going down hard in the California recall wasn't the polling, although that all swung the wrong way in the final weeks, but his suggestion late in the campaign that Democrats were going to steal the election.

Preemptive excuse-making isn't a sign of great confidence — the winning side never complains of cheating.

Sure enough, incumbent Gov. Gavin Newsom cruised to a victory made a little easier, as it happens, by Elder's insistence that Republicans were robbed in 2020 and about to be robbed again.

To his credit, Elder graciously conceded on Tuesday night, but his talk of stolen elections was arguably his biggest misstep of the campaign.

His landslide defeat is the latest evidence that the idea the 2020 presidential election was stolen is toxic for Republicans.

It's not as though Elder, a talk radio host with no political experience who was running in a deep blue state and got massively outspent, was going to have an easy time regardless. But when he got pushed by Trump supporters into endorsing the stolen election narrative, he ran directly into a Newsom political buzzsaw linking him with Donald Trump and the Jan. 6 riot.

In the Georgia special Senate elections earlier this year, Trump himself divided the party and suppressed GOP turnout at the margins by trying to make the election about November 2020 as much as possible and accusing Republicans who didn't go along with his allegations of partisan treason

Idea that the 2020 presidential election was stolen is toxic for Republicans.

There may be other costs to come, perhaps up to and including the 2024 presidential election if Trump is the nominee again.

The odds were always stacked against Elder. Still, there was a chance he could define himself as an outsider worth taking a flier on, so long as he never lost sight of the fact he was running in a strongly anti-Trump state with an enormous Democratic registration advantage.

In an interview with the Sacramento Bee editorial board in August, Elder seemed aware of his situation. Asked about the 2020 election, he said Biden had won "fairly and squarely."

Then, Elder got some pushback on Twitter and couldn't withstand it. Shortly thereafter, he appeared on a conservative talk radio program and said he needed "a mulligan," and related a variety of complaints about the 2020 election.

Although Elder didn't deserve the abuse he endured during the campaign — getting smeared as an alleged tool of white supremacy and even physically assaulted at a campaign stop — here, he'd given his opponents unnecessary ammunition.

If Elder had been running in a Republican primary in a red state, he would have secured his position nicely with his doover, but he'd driven a nail in his own coffin in the recall.

It's one thing to complain about last-minute changes in voting procedures in 2020 and to advocate for a system that is secure and tilts toward in-person voting; it's another to retail unproven allegations that, for most people, will always be associated with Trump's worst excesses and the rioting at the U.S. Capitol.

The choice that was forced on Elder — to admit that Biden won the election and alienate MAGA voters, or to say it was stolen and alienate voters in the middle — will be faced by Republican candidates around the country for the duration.

That won't change as long

That won't change as long as Trump has an outsize influence on the party. He's not letting 2020 go, rather is bent on vengeance against those Republicans he believes betrayed him by not embracing his various conspiracy theories.

Since he never admits the fairness of any loss, the number of rigged and stolen elections will only increase — the recall, Trump said in a statement, is "just another giant Election Scam, no different, but less blatant, than the 2020 Presidential Election Scam!"

This is a cynical and corrosive view of American democracy that, to the extent it becomes GOP orthodoxy, can only contribute to further Republican frustration.

OBITUARIES

Rev. David A. McIntosh, Sr.

Born September 16, 1927, in McComb, Mississippi to William Franklin McIntosh, Sr. and Ruby Holmes McIntosh, he was the third born of four children and the last survivor of his generation. He was a gifted athlete at McComb High School in multiple sports, leading his teams to state championships in football and track.

Called to the ministry as a young man, he attended Millsaps College to prepare for that ministry, declining athletic scholarship offers in three sports from numerous Southeastern Conference schools. When he entered Millsaps in 1945, sports had been discontinued due to the war effort. When football was reinstituted before his junior year, he was persuaded to play by his beloved Coach Doby Bartling. He was by all accounts a phenomenal player, was twice named Little All American, and was drafted by the Los Angeles Rams. He turned down that offer to begin his seminary studies at Emory University's Candler School of Theology. He remains the only ordained minister inducted into the Mississippi Sports Hall of Fame (1973). He loved Millsaps College and served 16 years (1969-1985) as a member of its Board of Trustees.

He was an inaugural member of its Athletics Hall of Fame (1969), both for football and for basketball, and was named Alumnus of the Year (1996). While at Emory he served a pastorate Smithville, Georgia.

Upon his return to Mississippi he served United Methodist churches, in succession, at Scooba, Ridgeland, Morton, Alta Woods (Jackson), Central (Meridian), Christ (Jackson), Crawford Street (Vicksburg), and First UMC of Laurel. After retirement from being a senior pastor he became a hospital minister for Christ UMC (for another 20 years) where he was ultimately named Pastor

The kingdom citizen's blessedness

Please turn in your Bible to Matthew 5:1-12. Over the last three weeks, we have looked at the character of the Christian as it is described in the Beatitudes. In relation, we have also seen specific blessings pronounced by the Lord in this passage. But Jesus' purpose in giving these blessings is not so much to draw our attention to those character qualities as to draw our attention to the blessings themselves. Specifically, we have seen eight blessings pronounced by the Lord Jesus Christ. Seven of them are pronounced upon character qualities of the Christian, and one of them is pronounced upon the circumstances in which Christians find themselves. However, it is important to note that the blessing in the first Beatitude and in the eighth Beatitude is the same blessing where Jesus says, "for theirs is the kingdom of heaven" in referring to both "the poor in spirit" and to "those who are persecuted for righteousness sake." That reminds us that there is an over-arching blessing and that all of the other Beatitudes are aspects of that grand blessing. It is not that some Christians get some of these blessings, but others do not. It is important to remember that all Christians partake of these blessings. Given these truths, today we will look at a fundamental question that the Beatitudes answer which is "What does it mean to be blessed?"

The first blessing we see set forth is the grand blessing in verses 3, 10 and 12. Specifically, it is the blessing where Jesus says that "theirs is the kingdom of heaven." It is the blessing that we have our belonging in the kingdom. The kingdom of God is in our heart. It is the truth that the rule of God, the protection of God, and the power of God in all its magnitude is at work in believers. The Lord Jesus is saying, "Christian, here is My first blessing to you. That which the people of God had been looking for, for over two thousand years, is now a reality in your hearts." Our Lord is telling us that believers have their place of belonging in the kingdom and that the kingdom is actively at work in their own lives. Christians are already in and under the kingdom and this is the grand blessing that God gives to His people.

II. Christians Have the Blessing of Being Comforted by God.

The rest of the Beatitudes are an elaboration on that great Beatitude. And we see the second one in verse 4 where Jesus says, "Blessed are those who mourn, for they shall be comforted." Jesus is telling us here that Christians have the blessing of being comforted by God Himself. Christians receive divine strength and vitality from God in the midst of their trials and temptations. It is a repentant sinner mourning over his or her sin and finding solace and being made happy because of the strengthening and the comforting of God. And so Jesus says that all those who have known what it is to mourn for sin will know My comfort.

III. Christians Are Heirs to the World. Jesus gives His third blessing in verse 5 where He says, 'Blessed are the gentle, for they shall inherit the earth." He tells us that Christians are heirs to the world. He tells us that restored dominion over the redeemed world will belong to Christians. Jesus is not speaking allegorically here. He is telling us something marvelous. He is telling us that one day the redeemed world will again be put under our stewardship. And even now we are experiencing the restoration of the dominion that God intended for us. The meek, the one who has abdicated his rights, has the world given to him to be a steward for God. Not simply the land of Canaan, but the world belongs to the meek. IV. Christians Are Ful-

We see yet another blessing in verse 6 where Jesus says, "Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, for they shall be satisfied." Christians are fulfilled. Jesus tells us here that one of the blessings that He gives believers is a complete contentment and satisfaction in life. Contentment is given to those who recognize that they lack holiness and to those who recognize that holiness is inextricably tied into happiness and satisfaction and contentment in this life. And so they long for holiness, they long for righteousness, they long for godliness, and they long to be like God. Jesus tells us that those who long for the kingdom and its righteousness, they will know satisfaction here. That is a promise from the Lord Jesus to believers. Jesus is saying to us "Seek first the kingdom and its righteousness, and you will be satisfied." It is only then when we seek first the kingdom and its righteousness that all these things are added to us. That is a blessing to us from Christ.

V. The Christian Is

Blessed With Mercy. In verse 7, Jesus says, Blessed are the merciful, for they shall receive mercy." What is mercy? Mercy is when God helps us to our feet when we have fallen, when He defends us, and when He protects us when we are weak. This truth is perfectly illustrated in the story of the Good Samaritan who aids that abused man who cannot help himself and who is left for dead in the ditch. He is aided by the Good Samaritan and so the Lord shows us mercy in aiding us in our sin in our mis-

VI. Those Who Are

Blessed Shall See God. Finally, in verse 8, Jesus says, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." Will they see God visibly? No. That is not the point. The point is that they will enter into fellowship with God. They will know what it is to have true saving knowledge of God. Jesus is saying that those citizens of My kingdom, those who desire more than anything else to fellowship and to commune with the living God, they shall have that communion eternally. As adopted children of God, these blessings are all theirs and these blessings are for

My friend, you may be thinking, "I see none of those character qualities in me." If you are saying that, come and embrace Christ, and you will know not only those qualities of life, but you will know these blessings of which Jesus is speaking. And if you are a discouraged Christian today, perhaps you have not been meditating on the blessings that Jesus Christ bought with His life on the cross. Know that these are His blessings for you. May our hearts apprehend the truth of God's Word and may Christ be glorified in our knowing the truth.

Getting the Message/Rev. Chris Shelton

God's special favor toward Israel

This passage highlights for us another stop in Paul's first missionary journey. Paul and his companions left Cyprus and traveled to Asia Minor, the location of modern day Turkey. They traveled inland and arrived at Antioch in Pisidia, where Paul was asked to speak in the synagogue. I want to draw your attention to several aspects of Paul's message.

First, it is full of Scripture. He gives a summary of God's special favor toward Israel in the Old Testament. In doing so he brings out the redemptive favors of God, all of which pointed to the coming of Christ into the world.

Paul depicts Scripture as an organic whole, gradually unfolding the redemptive promise of God until its complete disclosure in Jesus' death and resurrection. To say Scripture is God-breathed is not an irrational statement. Paul points to God fulfilling the prophets and his purposes in the coming of Jesus.

When Jesus began his ministry, he quoted words that Isaiah had written around 800 years before: "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me to proclaim good news to the poor. He sent me to proclaim liberty to the captives and recovering of sight to the blind and to set at liberty those who are oppressed: to proclaim the year of the Lord's favor" (Isaiah 61:1).

Isaiah was writing of the work of salvation the Messiah would accomplish. When Jesus finished reading this, he sat down and said, "Today this Scripture is fulfilled in your hearing." In Paul's sermon, he quotes the Old Testament to explain Christ's death, his redemptive accomplishments, and his resurrection. He uses Scripture, as Jesus did, to unveil God's salvation.

God moved the prophets to write of Christ so we could see plainly that salvation is from him and that Jesus is more than a prophet. He is the eternal Son of God, God's final word to sinful humanity; he is not just a messenger, but the message. And we need to listen because he came to save sinners.

Another element of Paul's sermon is to bring out the patience of God with sinners. Israel's persistent response toward the amazing favor of God was rebellion and unbelief.

God shows in the nation of Israel the sinfulness of sin in mankind. Their rebellion against God culminates in calling for Jesus' death: "And though they found in him no guilt worthy of death, they asked Pilate to have him executed" (Acts 13:28).

Israel needed a sin-pardoning God, and so do you and I. Christ came to save sinners. That is the message. If God didn't bear long with sinners and pardon many and repeated offenses, we would have no hope. You can look at yourself and rightly say I am a standing example of God's patience with sinners.

Another aspect of Paul's sermon is to emphasize what a treasure the gospel is. He says, "We bring you good news" (Acts 13:32). This is the same "glad tidings" the angels pronounced to the shepherds when Christ the Lord was born (Luke 2).

Paul says of Christ: "Let it be known to you therefore brothers, that through this man forgiveness of sins is proclaimed to you, and by him everyone who believes is freed from everything from which you could not be freed from the law of Moses" (Acts 13:38-39).

In Christ, God's justice and mercy are reconciled. God freely forgives sinners because Christ has taken the judgment they rightly deserve. God can forgive the worst sin without relinquishing in the least his abhorrence of that sin. This is how great a treasure the gospel is, how great a treasure Christ is.

But forgiveness is not automatic. It is required you believe, that you have faith in Christ. And that means coming to be washed clean by him; entrusting your body and soul unto him. It is not a deleterious thing to be cleansed and embraced by the Son of God, nor to receive a rich welcome into the kingdom of God. It is the gift of life. And God delights to

Paul closes his sermon with a warning. He quotes the prophet Habakkuk, who warned Israel of impending judgment (Acts 13:41). His point is you can't avert the judgment of God because you don't believe it or don't like it. It is coming. What you can do is make provision for it by calling upon Christ.

Non-native plants have their roles in gardens

By FELDER RUSHING rushingfelder@yahoo.com

Like anyone else with emotionally charged agendas, native plant puritans can be a bit tedious.

Sorry, not trying to rattle any cages or pull any chains. But sometimes sweeping assumptions need to be addressed by someone who cares enough to give a nod to see different sides of polarized issues. Including in the garden.

Today's rant: The assumption that native plants are superior to non-natives as garden mainstays is largely not true.

Keep in mind that this twicepast president of our native plant society grows many natives, and lectures on them from coast to coast. I believe in and promote their sense of place, ability to survive our climate, and support native wildlife plus other more subtle benefits to our complex natural world. Shoot me an email for my free publication on the most durable, gardenquality Mississippi natives.

I just don't buy into the unscientific, emotional idea that native plants are always better garden choices; without considering the pros and cons, trying to push a native plant over an exotic plant purely because it is native is irresponsible.

Sure, more than a few nonnative plants are barren to our wildlife, and many have spread across the countryside, displacing natives and disrupting natural systems. But natives are also weedy, with oaks relentlessly trying to change my sunny garden into a shaded forest, and Virginia creeper eating up more than its share of real estate.

Worst of all, not all natives do well in man-made landscapes, or even over the entire state. We have plants that thrive on the coast but not in the Delta, others that are highly sensitive to sun or shade, and many better adapted to river bottoms but not drier hillsides. Many natives cannot survive in gardens with highly unnatural microclimates, deeply disturbed compacted soil, soil and air pollution, higher heat loads from paving and reflective surfaces, and competition with lawns.

On top of this, a lot gardenattractive natives are not all that easy to find commercially. Some look terrible in rows of pots - a big issue for garden centers which, even with labels saying a plant is native or beneficial to wildlife, are led by sales, not ecological values. You have to find local native plant sales to find really cool native plants. In most cases people are just looking for plants that look good and hopefully thrive for a long time, with little regard for their origin; butterflies and bees are welcome lagniappe, but only if they don't also have larvae that booger up plants.

And truth is, many non-native plants are actually better suited to landscape use and are often superior for supporting wildlife. I mean, in spite of my many native wildflowers, some of which are crucial to native wildlife survival, when I want to take photos of butterflies and hummingbirds, I find them mostly on my zinnias, lantana, salvias, and abelias, all which grow well and flower for months, yet none of which are native.

Meanwhile, I believe that in the novel garden environment, a heady mixture of both native and nonnative species can create a richer tapestry - a combination of native and non-native plant species can bring more vibrancy and joy, and also considerable value to native fauna.

Again, I support natives when practical; I find it interesting that I photograph more Mississippi wildflowers used well in English gardens than my own neighborhood.

Bottom line: I think the most responsible approach is to grow mostly what grows best in our area, with as many attractive natives as you can for wildlife as well as aesthetics. Just don't all righteous about it.

improvements loan to fund interest rate over a term not to exceed five years.

> The advertised purpose of the loan is for "constructing, reconstructing, and repairing roads, highways and bridges within the County; and acquiring the necessary land, including land for road building materials, acquiring rights-of-way therefor; and the purchase of construction equipment and accessories thereto reasonably required to construct, repair and renovate said roads, highways and bridges and approaches thereto within the County, including certain lowwater control improvements, and for any other purposes authorized by the County Act; and providing the costs of issuance thereof (collectively, the 'Project')," the ad states.

Attorney Thad Varner of Butler Snow, who managed advertising for the bids for the board, said the board received 10 bids but one was discarded because it came in after the 4 p.m. deadline.

Steve Pittman of Government Consultants then presented the bids to the board.

"We received nine bids from banks and that's an impressive number, by the way," Pittman said. "I do this in a lot of counties and cities around the state and nine bids is a very impressive number to the credit of Madison County. There is no question about your credit so banks want their money with good credit."

The bids as read by Pittman in no particular order:

- Bank Plus 1.39%
- JP Morgan 1.46% • People's Bank of Biloxi
- 1.94% • Regions Bank 1.13%
 - Hancock Bank 1.13%
 - Trustmark 1.18%
 - Capital One Bank 1.19% • Community Bank 1.05%
- BankCorp South 1.19% "So the low bidder is Community Bank at 1.05% and that would be my recommendation to the board," Pittman said. District 3 Supervisor Gerald Steen moved to accept Community Bank's low bid of 1.05% and the motion was carried unanimously.

"That is a tremendous rate of 1.05%," Varner said. "Pretty outstanding."

Pittman said the bid that came in too late to accept was not better than the one submitted by Community Bank.

In other matters at Monday's regular board meeting, supervisors:

· Agreed to repair a driveway on Tyson Road where garbage trucks turn around by placing gravel on it.

• Agreed to pay $7,250 to move water lines owned by the Cameron Water System because the county requested the water lines be moved to accommodate a Simpson Road bridge construction project.

• Steen made a motion to appoint Butler Snow attorneys to work with the Central Mississippi Planning and Development District to prepare redistricting maps. District 4 Supervisor and Board President Karl Banks seconded the motion for discussion and said he believed board attorney Mike Espy could handle the work and the board voted 3-2 to delay any decision until closer to the time of preparing the maps. District 2 Supervisor Trey Baxter and Steen cast the dissenting votes.

• On the recommendation of Tim Bryan, the county engineer, approved plats for Charleston Place phase III and Cedar Point as well as work at Sulphur Springs Park.

• On the recommendation of Scott Weeks, planning and zoning director, approved plats for Twelve Oaks and Charleston

• Agreed to pay Waggoner Engineers $206,000 for a consultation contract to develop a project proposal for adding broadband to the county.

· Unanimously approved a resolution to solidify the transfer of ownership of a building on Main Street in Madison to the City of Madison with a reverter clause stipulating that if the building is ever to be sold, ownership would revert to

Germantown High School's Arrington values teammates as family

By JOHN LEE

john@onlinemadisont.com

GLUCKSTADT - Senior linebacker Devin Arrington said he considers his fellow Germantown High School football teammates to be a big family, and they are the reason he loves playing football for his school.

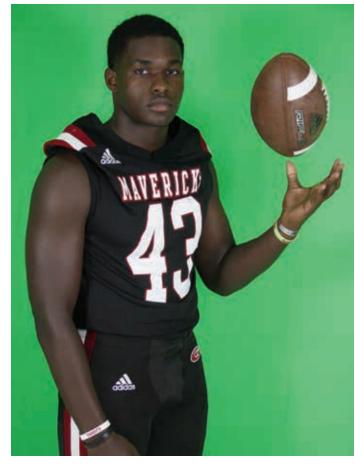

Arrington started playing linebacker for Germantown High School when he was in ninth grade, and he has held that position ever since.

"My family moved here when I was 10 years old, and my brother went to Germantown," Arrington said. "I've been playing football since I was 3 years old, and I just loved the game. I wanted to be a linebacker because over the years I played several different positions, and one day in middle school I was told by my coach I was playing linebacker. I learned the position and grew to love it."

Arrington said his favorite part of playing for Germantown is the love he feels playing on the team.

"We're a family," Arrington said. "If I'm going through something, my teammates are there for me. We all grew up together, and they're my brothers. It's something special, and I'll never forget from Germantown in May and has a couple of colleges in mind, including Georgia State or Louisville. He hopes to major in either real estate or marketing.

Arrington said his parents are real estate agents and build houses, which is something he is interested in. He said he would also love to get into commercial-making for big

"Besides sleeping, I love hanging out with my friends since we do everything together," Arrington said. "I plan to get a job after this year, maybe Chick-Fil-A. I like to collect shoes, I like to clean, and I love to cook all sorts of things."

Arrington's favorites:

- Favorite food: fried
- Favorite movie: anything Spider-Man
- Favorite vacation spots: Bahamas, Barbados, or Disney World
- Favorite video game: NBA 2K20 "I'm going all in this year,"

Arrington said. "We have a shot at the state title this year, Brown said. "I hope it all pays and I am bringing it."

Germantown head football coach Scott Brown praised Arrington for being a good, coachable team player.

"Devin is a good kid and plays harder than anyone on the team," Brown said. "He's very intense and coachable. He is a yes sir and no sir guy. He has always been a team player, and he would run through a brick wall if you asked him to."

Brown said Arrington had 19 tackles against Vicksburg on Aug. 27, which he said is good for a linebacker.

"Everyone has worked hard all summer and worked hard in the weight room," off for us. We went 4-7 last season, but four of those losses were by 7 points or less. This is our third year of 6A, so it's been a little more challenging for us.'

Brown said the district Germantown is in is the toughest in Mississippi, and his team has to bring their Agame every Friday night.

"We're focusing on making the playoffs since we've never reached the playoffs in the time we've been 6A," Brown said. "Once you get to the playoffs, anything can happen. Devin is an essential part of the team — just a good kid. Every teacher enjoys having him in class. He's a joy to be around, on and off the

Cajun Fest returns to St. Francis after 1-year hiatus

By JOHN LEE

john@onlinemadison.com

MADISON — St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Church has been hosting Caiun Fest and celebrating families coming together with the community for three decades.

This year's event will be from 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Oct. 3 on the church grounds at 4000 W. Tidewater Lane.

Father Albeenreddy Vatti of St. Francis said Cajun Fest is a celebration of families coming together with their community.

In addition to bringing families together, Cajun Fest, also celebrates not only the history of the parish but also members of the parish and the many diverse cultures from which they come.

After being reduced to a virtual raffle last year, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, Vatti said the parish wanted to bring the event back on Oct. 3 as big as possible while staying safe.

The festival begins at 11:30 a.m. and ends at 4 p.m. While Cajun Fest is usually held annually in May, the pandemic delayed it to October this year.

'Cajun Fest has an aspect of fundraising, but it is mainly families celebrating together and knowing who we are as a parish," Vatti said.

Vatti, a priest for St. Francis for the past six years, said the family aspect is his favorite part of the festival.

"There are many denominations and cultures that come join us and share the experience," Vatti said. "We want all members of the community to come together and get to know one another."

Vatti said the festival this year is no different from years past, besides the event being on a smaller scale.

"I think people will respond to the festival this year well, and we're positive that people will be safe since everything is outdoors this year," he said. 'Since it's an outdoor event, we are not asking people to wear masks, but we recommend families bring their chairs and spread out safely on the grounds since we all want to be in a safe environment."

The last time Cajun Fest was held was in 2019.

Mike Robinson, a chairman of the Cajun Fest Committee, said he encourages everyone to come out and enjoy the company of friends and family and let the cares of the last couple of years go for a little while.

"It'll be a good time for everyone, and we want people to relax and have fun," Robinson said. "We're hoping the weather will be good, and the Knights of Columbus will be out there cooking as always."

Robinson said everything at the festival, including food, drinks, and games, costs a certain number of tickets. People can purchase tickets on-site at the festival for $1 each.

He said this year, most of the usual food items are available, including gumbo, jambalaya, shrimp, crawfish etouffee and more.

"We'll have six games for the kids while following safety: Plinko, Cajun Wheel of Fortune, Ring Toss, Noodle Toss, Duck Pond, and the Cajun Frog Jump," he said. We'll also have music from the band Waylon Thibodeaux and The Cajun Fiddler."

Robinson said some things from previous Cajun Fests won't return, such as the human hamster balls, jump houses, and the train ride, due to COVID protocols. Many of the annual vendors are not returning as well. 'We had to scale back this year to keep everyone as safe as possible, but we still wanted it to be big enough for everyone to have a good time,"

Robinson said. He said the yearly raffle is coming back with prizes including a 65-inch TV, jewelry and art pieces.

"Raffle tickets are $5 each and $40 for a pack of 10," he said. "People should come to sit out in the courtyard, bring their chairs and tents, get some food, and listen to the music."
