DRIVER VICTIM, PASSENGERS ARRESTED

Police searching for Costco area shooter

By DUNCAN DENT duncan@onlinemadison.com

RIDGELAND — While the authorities don't know who shot into the vehicle of a convicted felon driving north on the Highland Colony Parkway near the Costco last week, the victim and two other Canton men in the vehicle have been arrested.

The driver, Tyrone Lewis,

30, is out of the hospital but was charged on a weapons violation on Monday following the Thursday afternoon incident.

Lewis has been charged as a felon for carrying a concealed weapon and was in the Madison County Jail on Wednesday awaiting a bond hearing, the authorities said.

The two passengers, Anterion T. Robinson, 25, and Lajeremy J. Johnson, 35, were taken into custody after the incident shortly after the trio left a bar and charged with tampering with evidence, including firearms they allegedly discarded. They are both out on a $10,000

Tyrone Lewis

Lewis was driving a Chevrolet Tahoe near the Natchez Trace overpass toward the roundabout at Old Agency when someone in a sedan opened fire, the authorities said.

Lewis was shot in the left arm but continued to drive and turned south on I-55 at Old Agency Road but was unable to continue and pulled to the shoulder of the roadway near I-220 where the authorities encountered him in a ditch, MDOT traffic video showed.

Lewis was treated on the scene and later transported to a hospital where he underwent surgery and was listed in critical condition as of Sunday, according to the latest report See SHOTS, page A2

SPRING FINISH

Hoy Road widening on track

By DUNCAN DENT duncan@onlinemadison.com

MADISON — Hoy Road is finally taking shape, the mayor says, and the improvements are expected to greatly improve traffic flow by the spring.

"After many years of negotiations it is exciting to see the project take shape and see a change in the flow of traffic," said Madison Mayor Hawkins-Butler. "I believe the residents will be pleased."

The improvement project was originally projected to be completed in the spring of 2022 and is on schedule, officials said.

Stan Wright, Hoy Road project engineer with Neel Schaffer Engineering, said the project is "on schedule," and he expects the work to be completed early next year.

Hemphill Construction began work on the $9 million project in September 2020.

The project includes improvements to the intersection of Hoy and Rice/Tisdale Road; curb, gutter and sidewalk improvements; a multi-use path; and the widening of Hoy Road to five lanes from Old Canton Road to Victoria Place.

From there it will remain two lanes to the east. The widening project has left that section of the road westbound only for much of the project.

Hoy Road remains open for westbound traffic only from Rice Road to Old Canton Road, with Tisdale Road as the detour route.

NEW BEAR CREEK WATER WELLS

Usage exceeds 1.8 billion gallons

By SCOTT HAWKINS scott@onlinemadison.com

Population growth in south Madison County has necessitated the addition of two water wells currently under construction by the Bear Creek Water Association generating some interest on social media.

Bear Creek currently pumps about 1.8 billion gallons of water annually from nine wells each about 1,200 feet deep in what is known as the Sparta aquifer.

Growth in the 105-square-mile service area of Bear Creek that includes Madison, Gluckstadt and nearby unincorporated areas necessitated the first new wells since about 2006.

An aerial photograph on the Gluckstadt Facebook page recently showed one of the new wells being drilled on Clarkdell Road that runs east of U.S. 51 between Yandell and N. Old Canton.

"Does anyone know what or why they are drilling on Clarkdell Road? The drilling has been going on for about a month now..." the post stated.

People immediately responded in the comments speculating that workers were drilling for Co2 or natural gas.

One early commenter called on Nolan Williamson, general manager for the Bear Creek Water Association.

"Nolan Williamson? You typically know what's up," the commenter stated.

Williamson did not take long to reply to say it is a "water well. 20-inch casing, about 1,200 feet deep. Going to pull about 1600 GPM from the Sparta aquifer."

"We are pumping about 1.8 billion gallons annually with 9 wells," Williamson said in another comment on the Facebook post. "During peak times it is hard to keep the tanks full. This well is about $1.6 million. This is a well. This will not be an elevated tank."

Williamson said the well on Clarkdell Road is one of the two wells the association is currently drilling. The other well is on North Livingston Road, which is west of I-55.

The well on North Livingston Road will add about 558 million gallons annually and the one on Clarkdell 470 million gallons annually, according to the permits, to the association's water output, Williamson said.

"(The North Livingston Road well) is a little further along right now, meaning it's drilled and they moved that drilling rig from North Livingston Road to Clarkdell Road. See WELL, page A3

An aerial photo shows a $1.6 million, 1,200-foot deep water well being dug for Bear Creek Water Association to keep up with the growing demands throughout their service area. Bear Creek currently pumps 1.8 billion gallons of water a year.

Retired general served country for 41 years

By JOHN LEE
john@onlinemadison.com

Retired Maj. Gen. Don Roberts of Ridgeland served in the Air National Guard for more than 40 years. "Not everyone truly grasps the meaning of Veterans Day and some people take freedom for granted," Roberts said in advance of this year's Veterans Day observances that will be celebrated today (Thursday) to honor all the men and women who have served in the nation's armed forces. Roberts is just one of those individuals, having begun his service in February 1968 in the Air National Guard and serving for 41 years and 29 days, retiring in December 2011.

While he did not see combat, Roberts served in support in the Vietnam War, the Gulf War, Afghanistan and Iraq. "I want everyone to understand the price that so many people pay for Americans to have the freedom they do,"

Roberts said. "This day is a good time to stop and reflect on what our freedom means to us."

Roberts said he appreciates all veterans, including several he knows in Ridgeland, including Maj. Gen. Bill Lutz, Maj. Gen. Erik Hearon and Col. D.I. Smith. "I want to thank all the men and women who have served for our country," Roberts said.

Maj. Gen. Roberts

"We should celebrate that they stepped up and fought for a cause greater than themselves for the freedom we have today."

Cities throughout Madison County are planning individual Veterans Day activities today, Nov. 11. Ridgeland will hold a Veterans Ceremony at 11 a.m. today, Nov. 11, at Veterans Memory Park in front of Ridgeland City Hall at 100

West School St.

City of Ridgeland Community Promotions Coordinator Mary Beth McCullough said everyone is welcome and U.S. Rep. Michael Guest will be a guest speaker.

At 11 a.m. Friday, Nov. 12, the Daughters of American Revolution will present a veterans ceremony at the Never Forget Garden at Freedom Ridge Park at 253 W. School St.

The city of Madison has placed American flags on Main Street and Madison Parkway and other cities will observe Veterans Day as a holiday.

Madison County Schools are hosting multiple Veterans Day programs. Ridgeland High School held a Wednesday morning ceremony that included a veterans parade around the campus before a more formal ceremony inside the school auditorium to honor the veterans.

Canton records 7th homicide of year with Richard Circle shooting

By DUNCAN DENT
duncan@onlinemadison.com

Canton recorded its seventh murder of the year last week after police found a man dead from a gunshot wound behind a residence on Richard Circle.

Police Chief Otha Brown said that officers were called around 6:45 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 3, reporting an unresponsive male in the backyard of a Richard Circle residence. The man has been identified as Michael Winston, 50, who was declared dead on the scene.

Brown said they believe Winston was trying to get to a neighbor's house to find help after he had been shot in the groin area. Winston lived a street over on Sherwood Drive. Brown said Winston would have been able to walk through his backyard to the residence where he was found.

"We know that something took place at his house though we do not know what happened," Brown said. "We are still looking for the person or persons who may have done this. We are hoping to get some information from the public." Winston's death is the seventh murder of the year in Canton one short of last year. Eight murders were recorded inside the city of Canton last year, making it the most violent year for the city in recent memory.

The most recent murder this year, prior to Winston's death, Brown said, was Jaihlen Sims, 17, who was killed by a gunshot wound to the head after someone had shot into his Canal Street apartment Oct. 6 between 1:30 and 1:35 a.m.

The year 2020 was capped by a triple homicide of members of a family of immigrants from Guatemala. Officers found Faustino Ramirez, 20, and his pregnant wife, Martina, 19, dead with gunshot wounds to the head around 1:30 a.m. on Dec. 29, Brown said.

In response to ongoing violence in the city, the board of alderman approved an ordinance in September requiring local businesses to have security cameras. Brown said the ordinance will take effect on Dec. 1 and he hopes they can have most of the businesses compliant by the end of this year or the beginning of 2022.

"We want people to feel safe visiting our city and our locals to feel safe," Brown said.

Brown said he has not heard any forceful pushback to the ordinance. He said he had a recent conversation with a merchant who had concerns about the cost of installing cameras.

Brown said the ordinance requires at least two cameras, one to cover the exterior and one to cover the interior of a business. He said business owners did not need to get elaborate security systems and could likely find cost-effective solutions at a big box store.

"I told her that it was an effective crime preventer," Brown said. "If businesses have cameras it helps make sure anyone who wants to commit a crime will think twice about it."

Brown said the cameras will also be an effective way to add eyes and ears on public spaces as his officers "can't be everywhere at once."

Brown said he is currently working with city officials to find a camera or monitoring system that they can install on public property to "meet them halfway."

Ridgeland Police Chief John Neal said that during their investigation officers determined that Robinson and Johnson had attempted to hide potential evidence by removing firearms from the vehicle and discarding them along the side of the interstate.

"The two men did post bond and were released," Neal said Wednesday morning, adding that he had "no reportable updates. There have been developments but nothing major to lead to a suspect identification or arrest."

Ridgeland Police Lt. Brian Myers said the police received a 911 call at 4:21 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 4, reporting "two mobile vehicles exchanging gunfire" on the Highland Colony.

Neal said Johnson and Robinson gave statements saying they were passengers in Lewis' Tahoe and had just finished eating at Walk-On's restaurant and bar on the Highland Colony Parkway.

They said that as they left the bar heading north on the parkway a small light-colored sedan began following them and began firing at them. Myers said traffic was never brought to a complete halt due to the emergency response, but south Madison County roadways were snarled during the evening rush.

Myers said the victim left the scene by ambulance at 4:46 p.m. and that investigators cleared the scene by 6:05 p.m.

Neal said officers collected evidence from two identified crime scenes, one on I-55 and the other on the Highland Colony just north of Natchez Trace where the shots were fired.

Madison City Hall site of Hero Tree for veterans

By JOHN LEE
john@onlinemadison.com

Madison City Hall is one of several locations for the third annual Hero Tree veterans project this year hosted by Heart of Hospice of Jackson.

Hero Trees allow people in the community to grant Christmas wishes to 200 veterans and adults living in senior residential care throughout the metro area.

"Madison City Hall is proud to host the Heart of Hospice Hero Tree this season," said Mayor Mary Hawkins-Butler. "This is a wonderful way to spread Christmas joy to our veterans and seniors. I encourage everyone to stop by City Hall to pick a flag off of the tree to fulfill holiday wishes for those who have sacrificed for each of us."

Along with Madison City Hall at 1004 Madison Ave., Club 4 Fitness, 1022 Highway 51 in Madison; and Shucker's, 146 Conestoga Road in Ridgeland are the other Hero Tree locations in Madison County.

Amanda Houck, a senior administrator for Heart of Hospice in Jackson, said the Angel Tree Christmas program put on by the Salvation Army each year inspired the Hero Tree program.

"We felt there was a need to serve those who served us," Houck said. "Those people being our homeless veterans. Like the Angel Tree program, which collects toys and other items for children in need, the Hero Tree collects personal care items such as shampoo, conditioner or stamps for homeless veterans in need."

Houck said each Hero Tree is covered in flags, with each flag serving as a veteran's wish. Someone can take a flag and purchase a personal care item. She said once all of the items are collected, they are then delivered to the locations where each veteran's wish came from, such as the Veteran's Affairs Hospital in Jackson, or nursing homes such as The Woodlands, The Home Place, Plain View Assisted Living, Forest Hill and The Bluffs.

"We served 208 veterans last year, and we're aiming to serve around 220 this year," Houck said. "Anyone can come to get one of the flags from a sponsored location, or they can help out by dropping off cleaning supplies, gloves or any other personal care item at any of our sponsored locations without taking a flag."

Houck said that in addition to the Madison County locations Heart of Hospice has sponsored Hero Tree locations at the Rankin County

Chamber of Commerce in Brandon and the VFW office in Hinds County.

"We had to borrow flags from other trees to bring to them to Shucker's since they kept running out," Houck said. "The feedback on this has been great, and a lot of people have reached out to us on social media. As of right now, Madison City Hall has reported that they've already run out of flags."

Houck said the most important part of the Hero Tree project is thinking of the homeless veteran community and other places that need help, especially in times like these.

"With Veteran's Day being in November, we roll this out in the first week of the month to highlight it around Veteran's Day so the wishes can be delivered to the veterans during the Christmas season," she said.

To contribute to the Hero Tree project, visit Madison City Hall or any of the other locations to take a flag from the tree and return the flag with gifts to the location by Dec. 3 for Heart of Hospice to distribute by Christmas. The tree is available in City Hall from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

ingston over there to Clarkdell," Williamson said.

Work left to do on the North Livingston Road site is setting the pump and the generator and building a well house.

"That kind of stuff, so it is a little further along," Williamson said.

Completing a well takes approximately 10 or 11 months, Williamson said, adding the North Livingston Road well should be complete by March and the one on Clarkdell Road will be completed by July.

"The drilling rig will be gone before then," Williamson said of the Clarkdell Road well. "The drilling rig might be gone by January but the well won't be in service until probably July. Once the drilling rig is gone there is still a lot of work left to do."

Williamson said the Bear Creek Water Association services a little more than 18,000 meters, mostly residential customers but also some commercial customers, representing some 40,000 to 45,000 people in south Madison County.

Russia collusion hoaxers

Whether a tree falling in the forest makes a sound is open to debate, but there is little question that a Clintonista falling in the Washington swamp makes a massive splash. Another player in the Russia collusion hoax has, indeed, dropped into the muck, thanks to Special Prosecutor John Durham. A key to repairing Americans' years of broken trust in government is rewinding the historical tape and exposing the villains responsible for saddling the Trump presidency with their own treasonous behavior.

The recent arrest of Igor Danchenko, a principal source of allegations against then-candidate Donald Trump, suggests Mr. Durham is also tracking an asset of Democratic candidate Hillary Clinton's 2016 presidential campaign who helped cast Republican rival, Mr. Trump, as a Russian tool.

First came charges against FBI lawyer Kevin Clinesmith, who pleaded guilty last year to falsifying information presented to the secret Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA) court to win permission to spy on the Trump campaign. Second indicted was Washington lawyer Michael Sussmann, who hid his Clinton campaign affiliation when plying the FBI with Trump-Russia collusion allegations contained in a dossier compiled by former British spy Christopher Steele and funded by the Clinton campaign.

Third is Mr. Danchenko, a Russian employed in 2016 by the liberal Brookings Institution. The indictment charges him with five counts of lying to the FBI regarding the source of "derogatory information ... concerning Trump's purported ties to Russia (the 'Company Reports')." The information became the basis for the so-called Steele dossier.

If three's the charm, No. 4 along the investigative trail could prove the lodestone, a perfidious power within the Clinton circle. Mr. Danchenko falsely denied having communicated with an individual who was "a long-time participant in Democratic Party politics and was then an executive at a U.S. public relations firm ('PR Executive-1')." reads the Danchenko indictment. "In truth and in fact, and as Danchenko well knew, Danchenko sourced one or more specific allegations in the Company Reports anonymously to PR Executive-1."

News reports identify "PR Executive-1" as Charles H. Dolan Jr., a long-time Democrat and adviser to Mrs. Clinton's presidential campaigns. From the communication links already exposed, it is clear that investigators believe Mr. Dolan trafficked lies about Trump-Russia collusion. Mr. Danchenko passed the falsehoods to Mr. Steele, who incorporated them in his dossier. Mr. Sussmann echoed the lies with his whispers to the FBI. Then, the anti-Trump material served as the investigative basis for FBI lawyer Clinesmith's deception of the FISA court, which led to the government spying on the Trump campaign and subsequent efforts to destroy a sitting president.

"PR Executive-1" Dolan, as well as Messrs. Sussmann and Danchenko, enjoy the presumption of innocence in a court of law. Sadly, Donald Trump was afforded no such presumption in the court of public opinion. Americans deserve to know the role of each Democratic Clintonista involved in the Trump-Russia collusion hoax.

Enforcement, courts key to moving needle in Jackson

The first order function of government and society is to provide for the security of its people. Specific action items for Jackson: (1) Enforcement. (2) Courts.

(1) Enforcement. This city is under-policed, and it is vastly under-policed. We essentially have large swaths of the city that are not policed, and not because police don't care but because there are not enough police.

There is vast agreement in the fields of criminal justice and criminology that police presence deters crime. Think high school classroom with and without a teacher in the room. We have a lot of classrooms without a teacher and do not have an appreciable police presence citywide.

We need to axe unnecessary programs, some of them very expensive like the zoo, and invest in policing. Security is the first order function of government and society, and we're not doing it. Without security, you have nothing. The city and mayor controls policing directly.

(2) Courts. Courts move too slow, and this jams up the system and enforcement before it. This either does in effect or in fact discourage/prevent enforcement from sending new arrests (i.e., "inputs") into the system.

When one side points to the other, as they so often do, they are in part telling the truth and in part lying.

Speedy trials are important whether you view it as a civil libertarian or law and order type. To the civil libertarian (and hopefully everyone), constitutional rights matter and people have a right to a speedy trial.

To the law and order type, evidence becomes more complicated over time (e.g., witnesses move or die) and cases harder to prosecute. Judges and DAs can work together to move cases faster.

Judges can generally even force it. Sometimes they can't force it, and I'm speaking specifically here about the backlog at the state crime lab which runs reports for homicide cases and others and delays in results of mental health evaluations in cases where that defense is raised.

The state can help with the state crime lab and mental health evaluations. These issues delay prosecutions within the state's county courts. The city and mayor do not directly control courts or state crime lab or mental health evaluations, but they have a voice in pushing the issue AND NOT JUST pushing blame that direction when they are not handling enforcement.

So these are the two sides (enforcement and courts) where we move the needle. When one side points to the other, as they so often do, they are in part telling the truth and in part lying.

This gets solved by the mayor, judges, DA, police chief, sheriff, etc. all sitting together at a table and solving the problem. Like adults. The mayor can and should have called a meeting like this cons ago, but maybe we will see some conversations in the coming days. Maybe something positive happens.

The mayor has a huge impact on crime through policing and the priority he places on it. Huge. To date, there has been NO priority placed on it. That needs to change, and I think it only changes with public pressure. I believe the price tag is lives.

Matt Allen is a Jackson attorney and lives in the Belhaven neighborhood with his family. He will be awarded a PhD in Criminal Justice through the University of Southern Mississippi in December. Reach him at mwallen@brunini.com.

"I don't think parents should be telling schools what they should teach."

With this remark — arrogant, dismissive, contemptuous — in his debate with Glenn Youngkin, Terry McAuliffe committed a historic gaffe.

From that debate forward, his poll numbers steadily sank until McAuliffe lost his lead, and with it, the election.

And going down to defeat, McAuliffe dragged with him his fellow Democratic candidates for lieutenant governor and attorney general and watched Virginia's House of Delegates revert to Republican rule.

What was McAuliffe saying, and what were Virginians hearing, in his remark? McAuliffe was saying that, in deciding what should be taught in its public schools, Virginia parents should just sit down and shut up.

Thus, a year after Joe Biden won Virginia by 10 points did McAuliffe lose the state by three, a 13-point turnaround. In New Jersey, which Biden had won by 16, the popular Democratic governor barely survived a cliffhanger.

These dramatic shifts in voter behavior testify to a serious misreading by Democrats of the presidential election returns of 2020.

Biden's total of 81 million votes, with a 7-million vote margin over former President Donald Trump, had been hailed as testament that his time had come and that the American people had both rejected Trumpism and embraced the liberal policies and politics of good old Uncle Joe.

But the 2020 election was in reality a referendum on a single simple question: Do you want four more years of Trump? Yes or no?

Some 74 million people came out and voted to keep Trump in the White House, the largest number of voters ever won by a president.

However, an even larger number of voters were saying, "Enough!"

As moderate Democrats,

Liberals don't think parents should be telling schools what they should teach.

desperate to halt the progress of Sen. Bernie Sanders in the primaries, had voted for Biden to prevent a socialist from winning their nomination, voters who wanted an end to the Trump era cast their votes for the other name on the ballot, which was also Biden.

In 2020, Biden lit no fires in the primaries and spent most of the general election sheltering in the basement of his Wilmington, Delaware, home.

A vote for Biden was a mandate to replace Trump, not to overturn Trump's signature policies of no more wars, secure the border, cut taxes, rebuild the manufacturing base, reduce trade deficits, deregulate the economy and unleash the power of the U.S. free market system.

The Biden victory was a rejection of Trump, not a mandate for the agenda of Biden's party, which, with its left-wing core dominant, is outside the mainstream of America.

When the American people voted for Biden, they were voting for competence and an end to the daily conflict and chaos, not a Second Great Society.

They were not voting for $6 trillion or $3.5 trillion for cradle-to-grave socialism. They were not voting to "Defund the Police!" or tear down statues of Christopher Columbus and Confederate soldiers, or rename schools carrying the names of George Washington, Woodrow Wilson, Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson and Robert E. Lee.

They were certainly not voting to abandon Trump's wall and throw open the nation's borders to anyone who can make it through Mexico to the Rio Grande — or to give $450,000 in reparations for migrant families who were separated from their children after breaching our border.

They were not voting to have their children taught in public schools that the country they love is shot through with "systemic racism," and most children in America are born into "white privilege" and belong to an oppressor class whose victims are children of color.

The message to the Democratic Party Virginia sent was this:

"You can indulge the crazies in your party, but if the American people come to believe you share their ideas and intend to implement them, we are going to relieve you of control of Congress in 2022 and of the White House in 2024. Rely upon it."

Biden, who is today 10 points down from where he began his presidency, is facing some seemingly insurmountable problems.

More than 1 million people have illegally crossed the U.S. border into our country since he took office. The debacle of the early days of our withdrawal from Afghanistan are indelibly fixed in the public mind and identified with him.

Prices of food and gas and other necessities have risen even more rapidly than the 4-5% inflation that shows no sign of abating.

Supply chains for U.S. goods from abroad, from autos to appliances, are clogged, with container ships backed up in the Los Angeles and Long Beach harbors. And Biden is himself a portrait in confusion and contradiction.

Daily he loses his train of thought in public fora, forgetting places and names. While shutting down pipelines from Canada into our country to save the planet from the scourge of fossil fuels, Biden is calling on the Saudis to pump more oil to cut gasoline prices at the pump in the USA.

Having lost Virginia, Biden and his party look today like they are beginning to lose America.

Biden lets it rip in Scotland

Oh, to live in this age of conspiracies. Did you hear the latest one?

President Joe Biden was in Olde Europe crotch-nuzzling European environmentalists when, according to the Duchess of Cornwall, he let rip an enormous cloud of personal methane.

"It was long and loud and impossible to ignore," an acquaintance of Camilla Parker Bowles told the Daily Mail. "Camilla hasn't stopped talking about it."

Now, to fully appreciate the gravity of this story, you must speak those quotes aloud in the most spirited queen's voice you can muster.

"It was long and loud and impossible to ignore!" If you don't sound like a character from Monty Python, then you are doing it wrong.

Ted Cruz: Texas secession in play if Democrats 'fundamentally destroy' U.S.

Just like back in grade school, Mr. Biden's emission was especially noxious because he is the leader of the free world. The Duchess and the duch-er were chatting amiably at an art gallery in Glasgow discussing the grave threat of methane emissions around the world when he violated the peace and decorum.

Oh, the hypocrisy!

Now, every word of this story is entirely true. Obviously, at press time, we cannot confirm actual audio and video evidence of Mr. Biden's smog release in the company of the Duchess of Cornwall.

But we can confirm that we have watched Monty Python and the Holy Grail in its entirety. As a child, we memorized the scene where King Arthur and his Knights of the Roundtable were confronted by the Insulting Frenchman who was inexplicably guarding a castle in England.

"I fart in your general direction," the crude foreigner shouts over the parapet wall at the perplexed English royalty. "Your mother was a hamster, and your father smelt of elderberries!"

Despite the veracity of the Duchess' claim about Mr. Biden's breaking of royal wind, it is only a matter of time before Facebook and Google — the Gutenbergs of our time — clamp down and filter Mr. Biden's foul air by declaring the whole matter some kind of conspiracy theory. After all, these are the same lying zealots who launched a thousand "fact checks" after somebody printed up a t-shirt supposedly quoting Joe Biden to sell on the Internet.

"Buy a man eat fish, the day, teach man, to life time," read the offending t-shirt. It sure sounds like something Mr. Biden would say. But Google and Facebook were having none of it. Not kidding. Look it up on the Internet. There are more fact-checks over this t-shirt than there are on the entire Hillary Clinton hoax about President Trump colluding with Russia.

We now know that Mrs. Clinton's campaign was the whole and entire source of the so-called Steele Dossier, which launched a thousand investigations and conspiracy theories into Mr. Trump's first term in office. The Clintons, the media and the entire federal government's bureaucratic state were so heavily invested in the Trump-Russia conspiracy theories that nobody thought to even ask if any of it was true.

Democrats have always been the party of conspiracy theories. In fact, they govern by conspiracy theory.

Democrat politicians have wrecked New York City, Washington, D.C., and other major American metropolises for decades. Instead of maintaining the infrastructure of these cities, Democrat politicians have stolen public money or wasted it on "human infrastructure" such as welfare and their crazy, pro-crime policies.

Now, every time it rains, New York's subway system floods. Or, for the longest time, raw sewage washed directly into the Chesapeake Bay from the toilets of federal government office buildings.

The real culprit, Democrats, insist? You. Or "global warming."

The only solution? More of your money. Paid to them. And $6 a gallon gasoline.

Welcome to the age of conspiracy theories.

MSO's new executive director brings vision

By STAFF REPORTS
news@onlinemadison.com

Jenny Mann's passion and career focus in music management, fundraising, performance and education make her the perfect pick to lead the Mississippi Symphony Orchestra forward as its incoming president and executive director, MSO leaders say.

Mann, executive director of the Tuscaloosa Symphony since 2014 and its principal bassoonist since 2006, starts with MSO Jan. 1, filling the position that Michael Beattie held for almost 17 years. Beattie, who steered MSO to new heights, retires this year.

"She comes into a robust organization that Michael has built for us," said Hugh Parker, chair of the MSO search committee. The five-month national search engaged the m/Oppenheim search firm, resulting in 1,400 contacts, 144 applicants, eight who were considered by MSO and two finalists. Mann's experience, strengths and achievements stood out.

"Performance and education are two areas very close to my heart," Mann said, and that's what drew her to the job. "This is the ideal blending of both my chosen fields."

In addition to her Tuscaloosa Symphony roles, Mann is associate professor of bassoon and music management, and area coordinator for the arts administration degree at the University of Alabama. Partnerships and collaborations she led resulted in arts integration programs for area educators and professional artistic experiences for collegiate musicians. Mann authored the "Teaching Woodwinds: Bassoon" textbook, adopted by more than 15 colleges and universities, and she recorded three albums with the renowned Cavell Trio.

She was born in Minneapolis-Saint Paul, and grew up in Texas. Mann's education includes a bachelor's degree in music education from Baylor University, and master's and doctorate degrees in music from the University of Texas at Austin. She also holds a CFRE (Certified Fund Raising Executive) designation, a hallmark for good stewardship in fundraising.

"She fully understands our focus on live symphonic music, education and financial soundness," Parker said, praising her "tremendous" background.

"The qualifications she brings to the table felt like very natural fits for us," MSO Board Chairman Jack Allin said. "Jenny is a really great listener, and that is something we need to do a lot in this community, as it continues to evolve and grow.

Jenny Mann

We need somebody who is able to keep an ear to the ground, and listen to those voices in this community.

"I think that has a lot to do with keeping classical and symphonic music relevant in a community in the Deep South in the 21st century," Allin said.

"Jenny's experience, visionary perspectives and passion clearly align with where the symphony's future lies," said Delores Bolden Stamps, MSO board member. That includes ways education can expand to increase inclusivity and the symphony's purpose can extend beyond the stage. "She also talked about the importance of the symphony being a part of and reflective of the community where it exists," said Stamps. "She was indeed the best candidate."

Mann's track record in building community bridges and partnerships are key strengths. She's eager to work with the MSO board and musicians to re-imagine what the Jackson, Mississippi-based orchestra can be, and find ways to serve the entire state.

"They really want to be a trailblazer as an arts institution in the state," Mann said. "I believe the potential is absolutely there."

Jones to lead parks' senior program

By DUNCAN DENT
duncan@onlinemadison.com

Neely Jones took over as the senior adult coordinator for the Ridgeland Recreation and Parks department at the end of last month.

Jones took over from Lynda Assink, who has worked with the parks department for the past 22 years.

"I am excited to be here and look forward to taking Lynda's already successful program and make it even better," Jones said.

Jones came to the city from Keep Mississippi Beautiful and became familiar with their city department through the city's Keep Ridgeland Beautiful program.

"They are great," Jones said. "So far I have loved it here way more than I even expected. Everyone has been so welcoming and it is just a group of best friends."

Assink announced her retirement in mid-October. Jones started on Oct. 27, a Wednesday, and Assink officially retired the next day. In a letter to the senior adults, Assink welcomed Neely.

"She comes with new, fresh ideas," Assink wrote. "Please Welcome Neely. I know you will support and assist her as she gets acclimated to her new job. Her skills and talents will be a great addition to our senior adult programs."

Assink offered a sampling of things she has learned by putting together community events. She said they have all contributed to improving her mental, spiritual and physical health.

She said fitness programs have included exercise classes that meet three times a week and include disciplines such as martial arts and yoga.

Assink said that exposure to new things such as art, bridge, taekwondo and foreign languages has been a boon to her mental health.

She said the various Bible studies have shown her the "great value" of spiritual health and cited a specific Men's Bible Group lesson that reminded her that spiritual health is "a daily discipline like brushing your teeth."

Finally, Assink said she has taken joy from some of the simplest of classes whether they have been a session on gardening, art, dancing or just a bingo game.

"These are just a few of the many life lessons I have gleaned from you," Assink wrote. "I am so grateful. Thank you."

BIBLICAL PERSPECTIVES/J. Ligon Duncan III

God's law vs. human tradition: Part V

Please turn with me in your Bibles to Matthew chapter 5:38-42. This passage has been party to many common misunderstandings. It was in Jesus' day, and it is also in ours. I would like us to attend for a few moments what Jesus is, in fact, saying in this passage. In fact, we find three great truths that Jesus sets down. First, that personal vengeance is not justified in God's moral law. Second, that we must be guided by a spirit of love, not revenge. And third, we must be people of love and kindness even towards our enemies.

I. Personal Vengeance Is Not Justified in God's Moral Law.

In verse 38 Jesus is attacking the false teaching, the false interpretation of the Pharisees on the law. And He teaches us in the passage that we must not justify personal vengeance by appealing to God's moral law. In verse 38, we read, "You have heard that it was said, 'An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.'" Jesus knows that that passage was being quoted by Pharisees and they were using it to argue that personal vengeance was a command allowed for by Moses. The original intent of the Mosaic legislation in Leviticus 24 of what we call the lex talones, the law of the talon, the law of the claw is not a law promoting personal revenge. It was intended to do several things. It was, first of all, designed to discourage people seeking personal revenge. The law of Moses all along was designed to prevent personal revenge from taking over. The second thing the law is designed to do is to administer justice through the courts. You see, an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth is a counsel on giving proportionate punishment. In fact, that is the next thing that this law is designed to do. It is designed to make sure that penalties for crimes are just and proportionate. Notice it says, an eye for an eye and a tooth and a tooth. Not a tooth for an eye and an eye for a tooth. Whether it is a monetary fine, or some sort of other fine. The penalty ought to fit the crime. In other words, the penalty should neither be too lax, nor too severe. That is not a call to vengeance, it is call to equity, to justice in the punishments which are signed by the judge. And that is designed to promote Israel's safety. Notice also, that this law is designed to put the fear of God into people who work wickedness. Those who work wickedness ought to fear the swiftness and the severity of the punishments that will be meted out under this law.

II. We Must Be Guided by a Spirit of Love, Not Revenge.

Jesus comes to tell us, in contrast to the Pharisees view of this command, what He says the command means. And we learn that in verse 39, and this is the second thing Jesus teaches us in the passage. That we must not be guided by a spirit of revenge, but by a spirit of love and of peace. In verse 39 He says, "But I say to you, do not resist an evil person, but whoever slaps you on your right cheek, turn the other to him also." Jesus here gives His interpretation of the law, and He condemns the spirit of lovelessness, of hatred, a spirit that yearns to have revenge. He enjoins us as believers to have in our attitudes, and in our words, and in our deeds a desire to show that we are filled with a spirit of love and not a spirit of animosity and hostility. Christians bear witness to the love of God implanted in them when they respond to wickedness with love.

III. We Must Be People of Love and Kindness Even Towards Our Enemies.

Jesus teaches in verses 39-42 that we must positively be people of love and kindness even towards our enemies. He says in verses 39-42: "Whoever slaps you on the right cheek, turn the other to him also. If anyone wants to sue you and take your shirt, let him have your coat also. Whoever forces you to go one mile, go with him two. Give to him who asks of you, and do not turn away from him who wants to borrow from you." Jesus applies the real meaning of the law to four different situations in human relationships. In verse 39, for instance, He is talking about how we should respond to those who threaten to injure our bodies. Whoever slaps you on the right cheek, turn the other to him also. Notice in verse 40, we see Jesus tell us what our response ought to be to those who would rob us of our belongings, of our estates. How should we respond to them? Jesus says if anyone wants to sue you and take your shirt, let him have your coat also. Christ is not telling you that Christians may not resort to a court of law. That is not His point. His point is to detect an attitude in us. Are we quick to demand our rights, are we quick to press our interests despite the needs of others, are we willing to forebear and to forego our rights for the sake of the kingdom? Notice in verse 41, He speaks there of how we ought to respond to those who want to rob us of our liberty. Those who want to press us into service that we don't want to be in. Whoever forces you to go one mile, go with him two. Notice also in verse 42, he says to us, "Give to him who asks of you, and do not turn away from him who wants to borrow from you." There he speaks of how we ought to respond to those who are in distress, those who are in need of assistance. Do we respond in our giving, in our charity with generosity, or are we grudging? Do we give to charity, grudging every step of the way? Thinking of how much fun we could have had with that money, how much better we would spend it if we had that money to ourselves? Do we lend in time of need for selfish reasons, for the gain of interest, of excessive interest? Or do we lend selflessly, for the benefit of others? You see, the whole thrust of Jesus' teaching here, is us abdicating our rights for the sake of the kingdom and for the good of others. What is your heart like today? Is yours a heart filled with love, or with bitterness? If it is filled with bitterness, you will never be able to extract yourself from that bitterness by your own strength. You need the grace of Christ. May we now trust in him and rest in him.

God is sovereign over history

Lord willing, we will resume the study in Acts at the first of the year. This week we are looking in Isaiah 41. In this passage, God speaks to the nations and people of the world and then to his people who are called by his name.

He speaks to the people of the world in verses 1-7. He tells them to listen to him in silence (verse 1). He warns them of their accountability to him. He is beckoning them to his judgement. The "coastlands" is a phrase pointing to the remotest ends of the earth, signifying that no people are excluded from God's judgment. So there is reason to be silent and listen. The opportunity to turn from delusions is being offered by the Lord.

The Lord speaks of a new power out of the East who will come upon the world's scene at some point in the future. This conqueror will easily trample all those in his path (verse 2). The point here is that he is an instrument of judgment in the hands of the Lord.

The nations may look upon this conqueror as random or unfortunate, but the Lord says this rampage through the lands originated in heaven. God, who is sovereign over history, has raised this leader up for his purposes. When the Lord tells men what will happen in the future, he is inviting them to consider that their souls are in his hands.

The Lord says his name is I am, the first and the last (verse 4). He is the only non-contingent being in the universe. Everyone else and everything else depends upon him. In this context, with the Sovereign Lord appealing to them, it seems terrible for men to set their wills against his when they can turn and escape the danger before it is too late. But men have strong trust in their own devices.

The nations react in fear when the new conqueror emerges (verse 5). Their collective answer is to encourage each other to "be strong" (verse 6). They do not humble themselves and seek the Lord; rather, they prop up their courage by looking to their own resourcefulness to build better and stronger idols to protect themselves (verse 7).

We are taught a lesson here that is thematic in the Bible. Judgment comes because it is deserved. When it is delayed, it is due to the mercy of God. God's appeal is for men to look to him, to turn from their ways to his ways. It is misery to be tottering on the edge of destruction because of your own folly.

In verse 8, the Lord turns from the unbelief of men in the world to speak to his people. They will face tribulations on earth, and the world of men will oppose them (verses 11-12). They are to "fear not," no matter what comes over the horizon. God gives his people reasons for this command.

One is that they are chosen and beloved of God as Abraham was (verse 8). Abraham faced troubles in the world, but the Lord was with him. He was Abraham's "shield and very great reward" (Genesis 15:1). It is a comforting thought to have the Lord tell you he loves you as he did Abraham. God appears unspeakably glorious and lovely in issuing this assurance.

No matter what happens, he will "not cast you off" (verse 9), but rather he says, "I will be with you" (verse 10). The Lord Jesus told his disciples they would face tribulations in the world, but that he would never leave them nor forsake them. God obliges himself by telling his people to commit their way to him, and he will preserve them and load them with blessings (verse 10).

As God's people we are not to be dismayed with fear when troubles arise (verse 10). The word dismayed has the meaning of gazing in one direction and then another, not knowing where to look for safety. But the believer in Christ is not alone; he is to fix his eyes upon Christ.

The Lord makes promises to the believer in troubles: "I will strengthen you. I will help you. I will uphold you with my righteous right hand" (verse 10). The Lord repeats in verse 13, "For I, the Lord your God, hold your right hand; it is I who say to you, 'Fear not, I am the one who helps you.'

The Christian, in the face of fears, is to let God be his all in all. When subdued by and melted by the pardon of our souls, we can render to God both body and soul and be faithful even unto death.

SENIOR SPOTLIGHT

King appreciates coaches acting like family

By JOHN LEE
john@onlinemadison.com

Ridgeland High School senior defensive end Creighton King said the best part of playing football for his school is his coaches treating him and his fellow players like family and putting them in the position to play their best and win. King began playing football in the fourth grade and has played several defensive positions over the years such as nose guard, defensive tackle and half-back. He now plays as a defensive end for Ridgeland and has stuck with the position since ninth grade. “My favorite part of playing for Ridgeland High is the coaches and the atmosphere,” King said. “Every game I play, I know our coaches have our best interests in mind and will put us in the position to win. I appreciate these coaches and how they’ve treated us like their children and taught us right from wrong.” While King is unsure where he will go to college, he plans to continue playing football wherever he goes after he graduates in May. He wants to major in business and minor in sports medicine.

King said his favorite part of this season has been playing hard. “As a senior, you have to be a leader on the team as the younger players will look up to you,” King said. “You have to play hard and set an example to them so they can lead the team themselves in the future.” Outside of school and football, King enjoys traveling to different schools around the area and speaking to younger athletes interested in getting into sports. His favorites:

- Hobby: Hanging out with friends, bowling, sporting events, being part of the community
- Food: Steak
- Vacation spot: Hawaii
- Movie: “Creed II”
- Video game: “NBA 2K20”

“My highlight of this season was the game against Neshoba Central, where I had two sacks and three tackles for losses,” King said. “We did lose that game but we moved on, and we’re a better team now. I know this team will be successful in the future.” Ridgeland High School Head Coach Teddy Dyess said this is his first year as head coach for Ridgeland, and coaching King has been great. “Creighton is one of our senior leaders, and he bought into our vision,” Dyess said. “He comes to work every day with no complaints, and he works hard. He’s going to be a successful person one day because he does what he’s supposed to do, and he does it well.” Dyess said Ridgeland had a great season. They are 6-4 and heading into their first playoff game against West Point. “We had a great game last Thursday against Canton to clinch the playoffs,” Dyess said. “The biggest thing is that Creighton and the rest of our players have stuck together through the season and battled their way through, no matter what adversities stood in their way. He is a great human being, and it’s a privilege to teach him and be around him every day. I’m looking forward to seeing what great things he’ll accomplish in the next 10 years.”

Information with respect to the indebtedness may be obtained from the Office of the Issuer.
